AIR RAIDS ON BRITAIN RENEWED

HITLER SCORNS 'WAR AIMS' OF GREAT BRITAIN

Promises of United Europe and Disarmament Old Story, He Says on 7th Anniversary.

HITS VERSAILLES TREATY

Only National Socialism Was of Help in Healing Wounds, He Tells Nation in Talk.

BERLIN — (INS)—In his first public address since the Buergerbraukeller bomb explosion in Munich, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler tonight ridiculed the so-called "wonderful war aims" of Great Britain.

Addressing a huge gathering at the Berlin Sportspalast on the seventh anniversary of his accession to the German chancellorship, Hitler said that the German people and the rest of the world found themselves in the midst of "momentous events."

"A lot is being said in other countries about democracy," he said with sarcasm.

"Wonderful war aims are being set forth at the present time by the warring powers, particularly by England.

"A united Europe is to be created.

"And after that disarmament is to take place.

"Under this alleged new European scheme of things, religion and civilization are to bloom forth, and trade and commerce are to blossom with them.

"All these promises are just an old old story.

Heard Before, He Says.

"We have heard them so many times before that they no longer make any impression upon us.

"Talk of disarmament has been heard so many times that it is no longer convincing.

"Civilization after the last war also was to see a new upswing. Religion likewise—although not so much was said on that subject.

"How could any such improvement be expected to come from an arrogant people like the English?

"Contrary to their avowed aim, they soon set about chopping Europe into small pieces.

"As a result of this policy of the English, the nations of Eu-

OPPOSE LOAN

Mine Workers Denounce War Aid to Finland.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Following up a demand that the United States stay out of foreign wars, the United Mine Workers of America today opposed any U. S. government loans to Finland.

A resolution adopted by the union at its annual convention expressed sympathy for "heroic Finland and other victims of aggression," but said that it would be better policy for this nation to withhold "any money or participation directly or indirectly in wars in Europe and Asia."

Several union officers, including Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy, criticized Russia and Germany.

Another resolution condemned what it termed the inefficiency of the wage-hour law and urged large appropriations to better the act's enforcement.

The union also endorsed a pending proposal in congress to restrict the use of the National Guard in labor disputes.

Death Cheated Borah of Conference With Hitler

(Editor's Note: William Edgar Borah took a thousand unpublished news stories with him to his grave, but here is one—the ninth in a series of articles by William K. Hutchinson—which can be recorded for history for the first time.)

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON—(INS)—William Edgar Borah died without keeping a 14-months-old date with Chancellor Adolf Hitler for a personal conference in Germany.

America's master statesman received a highly desired invitation to visit Hitler as the guest of the German reich in November, 1938. He postponed immediate acceptance because of the attitude of the state department. He postponed it again because of a presidential utterance in the following January. The European war postponed it for him forever.

But Borah died, still hoping he might cross the Atlantic some day to meet Hitler face to face in friendly conference.

The "Lion of Idaho" had two high motives in a conference with Hitler. First, he hoped to intervene with the German chancellor in behalf of the Jews of Greater Germany. If he won some concessions from Hitler, Borah believed he would establish a historic precedent for eliminating religious bigotry from the world.

Second, Borah hoped to discuss world affairs with Hitler. As a private citizen and as a spokesman for the inarticulate masses, Borah hoped vaguely that a conference with Hitler might develop an international movement to preserve European peace—even to produce a plan, a foundation for permanent peace in Europe.

Borah had no illusions. He knew he wielded a heavy voice in world affairs—because of the stream of foreign visitors to his door. But he knew also he was only a common citizen—without military or diplomatic power—save his voice.

I participated in arranging the invitation and as a result, Borah promised me an exclusive story on it. So here is my story.

Early in 1938, after Germany took over Austria, a representative of a powerful world

'Fit As a Fiddle'

FDR IN ROBUST HEALTH AT 58

White House Physician Claims Roosevelt's Fine, Though a Bit Grayer.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A little grayer and with the lines of the years more deeply etched upon his face, President Roosevelt reached his 58th birthday anniversary today.

Despite these inevitable milestones of age, Mr. Roosevelt presented a picture of robust health to the nearly two-score guests who gathered at the White House during the day.

"Fit as a fiddle," was the verdict of presidential physician Dr. Ross McIntire after a general check-up of the chief executive.

For the most part, the president devoted the day to his guests and family, but members of his staff stood by for any important business that necessitates immediate White House attention.

Mr. Roosevelt expected to send

Canton Workers Protest Showing of "Gone With the Wind."

CANTON —(AP)— Objecting to the film "Gone With the Wind," because it assertedly portrays Abraham Lincoln as a "backwoods fool and ignoramus," the Canton Workers' Alliance last night asked city council to prohibit its showing here.

The council voted to return the letter, explaining it has "no authority to censor moving pictures."

BULLETIN

Harry W. Friend, 49, R. D. 1 Ashland, was instantly killed this afternoon when his car collided with a truck driven by Chester A. Smith, 27, Indianapolis, Ind., at the junction of routes 13 and 224 in Huron county. Charles Wagner, a companion in the car with Friend, was uninjured. Smith, also uninjured, was released by the Huron county coroner after the crash. State highway patrolmen believed Friend had accidentally driven past a stop sign and crashed into the side of the truck.

DRIVER ESCAPES DEATH AS TRAIN STRIKES TRUCK

Tells Police Watchman Came Out With Shovel, Then Ran Back for 'Stop' Sign.

Francis Aumend, 102½ North Walnut street, truck driver for the Michigan Motor Freight company, narrowly escaped death in a freak accident at the Erie railroad crossing on North Main street this morning.

Although X-rays of Aumend were to be taken later in the day, it was believed at General hospital that he was suffering from nothing more serious than bruises and an abrasion on his head, despite the fact that an eastbound Erie freight train struck the cab in which he was riding.

Pulling 2 Trailers.

The accident occurred at 10:30 a. m. as Aumend was driving a tractor and two trailers south on North Main street.

Aumend told Police Captain T. M. Bell and Patrolman Russell Miles, who investigated the case that as he approached the crossing the watchman came out with a shovel in his hand, and he presumed that he intended to shovel snow. Then the watchman suddenly ran back into the shack and ran out again with a "Stop" sign in his hand, he said.

By that time, Aumend said, he was on the track and the freight engine struck the cab with such impact that the motor was torn out and hurtled more than 100 feet, striking the corner of the new fire station on North Main street.

The impact turned the cab and both trailers completely around, heading north, but left them standing upright, according to police.

CADEK PAROLED

Cleveland Officer in Pen for Prohibition Bribes.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The state parole board today granted a parole, effective Jan. 2, 1941, to Louis J. Cadek, the last of five former Cleveland policemen convicted of accepting bribes during the prohibition era, to be paroled.

Cadek, a former police captain, entered Ohio penitentiary on May 10, 1937, to serve two one-to-20 year sentences.

Others convicted with Cadek and to whom paroles previously were granted were: James E. Price, ex-sergeant who will leave the London prison farm on May 1, 1941; Michael Harwood, ex-captain; Edwin C. Burns, ex-deputy inspector, and John Nebe, ex-lieutenant.

The parole board also issued paroles to 63 other Ohio penitentiary prisoners, restored eight to parole and continued 80 cases.

Fire Plug Damaged By Wrench

Shown above is one of the two fire hydrants discovered by firemen yesterday that could not be opened with their valve wrench. The top of this one, located at South Foster and East Third streets, shows fresh marks from a pipe wrench. The pencil points to one of the corners of the valve stem that has been worn off from opening and closing with improper tools. The other damaged outlet is located on Elm street, also in the industrial district. Both will have to be repaired, firemen said. This is the condition which Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger recently charged was caused by WPA workers and building contractors using the hydrants without authorization.

REPORT OF NEW QUINTS DOUBTED

Birth Of Five Girls In Cairo Likely To Be Just A Rumor.

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — Unconfirmed reports were received here today that quintuplets, all girls, were born yesterday to Sayeda Gehessa, wife of an Egyptian clerk. The mother has seven other children, six of them sons.

The Cairo report of quintuplets lacks authoritative confirmation.

Since the birth of the Dionne quintuplets in May, 1934, there have been many reports of such births.

Federalists Sweep 16 of 18 City Posts in Scout Election

A landslide swept 16 of the 18 Federalist candidates into office in the annual Boy Scout election to choose scouts to "run" the city government Feb. 8, Floyd Dent, area scout executive, announced today.

The scouts will fill the municipal offices for a day as a part of the local observance of National Boy Scout week.

Richard Weaver, 17, of troop No. 2, the Federalist mayoralty candidate, led his party to victory by defeating James Gadfield of troop No. 5, a write-in candidate on the Nationalist ticket, 114 to 40.

Weaver, an Eagle scout, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Weaver, 31 Sherman avenue, and was graduated from Mansfield high school last Friday night.

The only Nationalist candidates to emerge from the landslide were Bill Dent of troop No. 6, who won the third ward councilman post from Robert Black, 26 to 20, and James Gardner of troop No. 16, who defeated William Gandert for council clerk, 81 to 56.

Robert Burns of troop 5 received the most votes on the Federalist ticket, polling 138 in being elected service director. His opponent, Larry Bergstrom received 27 votes.

Ralph Hill of troop 16 won the race for municipal judge over Robert Whyte, 112 to 36, and Lee

NORMAL WINTER MARKS END OF COLDEST MONTH

Average January Temperature of 12.7 Degrees Below Old State Record.

Normal weather returned to the Mansfield area today after a month of repeated cold waves that made January the city's coldest month in many years.

With the return of moderate temperatures, snowfall ranging up to three inches plagued northern and central Ohio, coating highways and streets with thin ice. About a half inch of snow fell in Mansfield.

As the mercury climbed past 20 degrees today, Otto Sprunger, government weather observer for the city, went through his records and found it was the coldest January in the 15-year history of the local weather station and the monthly average was below the lowest state average for this month at least as far back as 1883, a period of 57 years.

Average temperature for the month was only 12.7 degrees, Sprunger said, and that is 2.2 degrees under the state average for January, 1918, one of the coldest months on record. The normal January temperature, compiled from a 15-year average, is 27.6 degrees.

12 Days of Zero or Below.

The observer's records showed that there were 12 days when the temperature was zero or below and twice it went to 15 below. Highest temperature for the month was 46 above on the 14th.

State highway patrolmen reported that driving was treacherous today in most of the state following the snow last night and this morning.

Fair and colder weather was forecast for tonight, but the temperature is not expected to fall to the low marks of the past several days. It will be warmer tomorrow afternoon and Thursday, the forecast said.

Temperatures rose in all parts of the nation as the sub-normal cold released its grip.

INTEREST LAGS

Only 12 Register in Day for Special Election Feb. 6.

On the basis of registrations with the county election board, Mansfielders are showing little interest in the special congressional primary next Tuesday, it was revealed today.

With the registration deadline set for 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, only a few persons sought to qualify to vote by registering or transferring, election board clerks said. Only 12 persons registered yesterday while it was pointed out that from 200 to 300 usually register daily before a general election.

The election board today was still waiting certification from boards in Licking and Coshocton counties of the 10 candidates' nominating petitions. Boards in all of the six counties in the 17th district must check the signatures on the petitions to make certain that at least 100 of them are valid.

Nazi Bombers Again Attack Shipping Lanes

One Invading Plane Shot Down, London Advices Claim, In Second Day of War From Air Against Merchant Shipping On East Coast.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Germany today renewed widespread air attacks on shipping along the east coast of the British Isles and Britain reported one of the Nazi raiders had been shot down.

Shore watchers saw one British patrol vessel attacked and escape unharmed. Jets of water rose from either side as she zigzagged to dodge two bombs from a low-flying Nazi plane.

British fighters then chased the invader into the clouds where the pursuit continued. Fighters were in action against other German planes over several east coast towns.

A German warplane bombed vessels off the east coast town of Yarmouth today, the air ministry announced.

Results "are not yet known," said the air ministry's first announcement. The attacker was pursued by a Royal Air Force fighter plane and coastal patrol machines.

In addition to a continuation of the war on shipping—it was estimated that from 15 to 20 German planes took part yesterday, attacking 14 vessels with bomb and machine-gun—German planes flew low over British coastal towns today.

Two German planes flew low over the northeast coast of Scotland while a third craft twice circled a Kentish coast town, in southeast England, at a height of less than 100 feet.

Confronted with a possibly ominous stepping-up of German air raids, Britons wondered if a lightning war against shipping might be at hand.

The British found proud comfort in reports that yesterday in the worst winter storm of nearly a half-century the flying guardians of the coast still could fight when land traffic was almost paralyzed.

British sources estimated that 15 to 20 German planes took part in yesterday's onslaught — the broadest of the war—extending over 700 miles, from the Shetland Islands south to the Kentish coast.

None of the attackers was reported to have penetrated inland and of 13 British merchant ships and one Latvian vessel bombed and machine-gunned not one was reported sunk, although there were several casualties among crewmen. The Germans also were said to have struck at two lightships.

(Berlin announced that seven "enemy-convoyed armed merchant ships and two patrol boats" were destroyed in yesterday's operations. The official German news agency announcement called the foray only a reconnaissance and declared that all the German planes returned safely as against the loss in combat of one British pursuit plane.)

Seven of the crew of the Latvian freighter Tautmila, 3,724 tons, were killed while the only British fatality announced was the death of a man aboard the steamer Gripfast, 1,109 tons. There were several wounded on these and other ships.

The German raiders cruised off the east coast for three hours until fighting planes, anti-aircraft fire and lowering fuel forced a halt.

VIBORG: Finns Await New Attack As Reds Mass Troops

BULLETIN

HELSINKI—(AP)—A Finnish air raid on a Russian harbor, possibly the Kronstadt naval base, and a further aerial sweep into Soviet territory was described by Finland today.

(By International News Service)

VIBORG, Finland—With Russian losses estimated to date at 200,000 men, reports from all battle fronts indicated today that a new and major Soviet offensive against Finland is imminent.

The military advices stated that the Russians are sending heavy reinforcements to all their lines both on the Mannerheim line in the Karelian isthmus and along the eastern Finnish border north of Lake Ladoga.

Meanwhile, Finnish sources claimed that 17 Russian planes were shot down during yesterday's Soviet air raids over southern Finland during which more than 100 persons were reported killed and between 250 and 300 were wounded.

At the same time it was claimed that the tide of the battle raging north of Lake Ladoga is now favoring the Finns.

TOKYO: Japan Insists On Return of 21 Seized Seamen

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—The foreign office announced that Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie today that the return to Japan of 21 Germans seized by the British navy from the Japanese liner Asama Maru was "essential."

The demand was made at a two and a half hour conference in which "every angle" of the Asama Maru case was discussed. The vessel was halted by a British warship Jan. 20 off Yokohama, and the 21 seamen, returning to Germany, were taken off. They have been interned in Hongkong.

Craigie and Arita agreed to meet again tomorrow.

The foreign office statement was considered significant because heretofore the Japanese government had simply "reserved the right" to demand the return of the captives. Hence the new position was interpreted as a strengthening of Japan's attitude.

The foreign office statement said Craigie requested today's conference. It was agreed that the British note replying to Japan's protest over the incident would not be published immediately.

The Japanese government "meanwhile is preparing a considered reply," it was stated.

—Advice— Married, Loves Other Woman

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Over a year ago I fell in love with a young lady who works in the same place with me. I'm married, but my wife and I never got along very well, and she suspects that I'm in love with this girl.

I've been out with this girl many times and we were planning to be married in spring, after I got a divorce. Recently she happened to meet my wife at some affair which they both attended, and since then has grown indifferent toward me. She won't even talk about marriage now.

AL.

This young lady, having become friendly with your wife, has no doubt found out more about you as a husband, which may have changed her mind. And I'm afraid there isn't anything you can do about it.

This is a new state of affairs to me—becoming engaged to one woman before you are divorced from the other. It has its advantages.

* * *

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

In the past month I've become engaged to the swellest fellow, who is fond of music, especially singing. I've sung for him, and he thinks I have a lovely voice, and would like me to take some training. However, my salary is too small to afford this luxury. How can I get some special training, without the expense of private lessons?

PATRICIA.

Nowadays, most churches have a choir of mixed voices. Why not offer your services there? Or you might join a choral club or a singing society at the Y. W. C. A. Look in the Music Section of the Sunday papers, where you will often find notices of different choral unions, some of which are asking for more members. I am sure you won't have any trouble getting into any of these organizations.

I'm glad your fiance wants you to keep on with your singing.

FAMILY CLASHES

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—Conflicts between parent and child are more evident in modern society today than they were under primitive conditions, according to Dr. Kingsley Davis, associate professor of sociology at Pennsylvania State. The cause, he said, was the rapid change of life today which leads to "arrogance and frustration in the young, fear and envy in the old."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"You think that now the queen has consented to marry me even though she be penniless, I can save the money which I otherwise would have expended upon duplicating her jewels," he said. "But to me her sweet surrender of her invincible pride is so precious that no possible expenditure of time and money is too great if it bring that independence back to her."

"But," I stammered, "will you have time to have the duplication completed before the wedding?"

My former employer either did not notice my agitation or purposely ignored it. He answered my question quickly, with not even a quirked eyebrow at my tremulous voice.

"As we shall be married almost immediately," he said, "of course, I cannot have the duplication completed in time. But it will be, I hope, a most welcome surprise when it does materialize, and she thinks herself financially independent of me. Therefore, I trust you have secured the name of the jeweler."

"I am sorry," I said, "but I have seen Queen Olga but once or twice since you spoke to me about the matter, and there was no fitting opportunity for me to put the question to her without arousing her suspicions. You would not wish me to do that. I know."

"Oh! of course not," he said hastily. "But will you please try to get the information for me as soon as possible?"

"I will do my best," I promised equivocally, wondering the while how his regal fiancee and I could convey to him the knowledge that Olga had a tiny mark of her own upon every emerald, thus making the necklace impossible of duplication as far as her eyes were concerned. If he would only go back to his hotel, I thought, I would be able to go into conference with Olga.

But that he had no intention of immediately gratifying my unspoken and inhospitable wish, I realized when he slipped his hand beneath my arm.

"Let us return to our window balcony," he said, intoning the words theatrically. "I would have words with thee."

I guessed what the words would be, and braced myself to hear—and deny—them.

"Did I mistake you, or do you intend writing that interpolated role for Olina and drilling her and Mary in it today?" he asked.

"I am going to make the very slight changes the interpolation demands," I said a bit stiffly, "and rehearse Olina in it, but not Mary. I can take all the other roles myself, and five minutes tomorrow morning before rehearsal will suffice for Mary.

"Don't you think," he began somewhat diffidently, an unheard of attitude from him, "that it might be a good thing to have the rehearsal this afternoon, as long as you will have the interpolated role completed?"

"I am sorry," I said, but in a voice that indicated I was completely devoid of dolor, "but, as I told you before, that will be impossible. I do not wish Mary even to think of her role today," I added mendaciously, "and I hate to stress the personal note, but I really am so fatigued that I could not possibly go through with a rehearsal."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, January 31.

While the faculties and energies may be under excellent astral stimuli on this day, there are certain equivocal or dubious factors to cope with. The inherent forces and predispositions, mental, psychical and emotional, seem to be in conflict, causing perplexity or anxiety that will be detrimental and taxing, as well as disturbing to relations with employers or superiors. Be alert to intrigue and be careful with writings.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which there may be much accomplishment if a tendency to overstrain the mental and nervous forces is averted, and they are able to shun worry, doubts and perplexities, as well as duplicity, equivocal entanglements and indulgence in expediency rather than principle. These might incite trouble with employers or superiors. With care there may be surprising gain and personal graftication.

A child born on this day may have characteristics and trends difficult to engineer into constructive and worthy channels. It may be versatile, skilful and have much ingenuity, but overwrought nervous and emotional energy may incite unpleasant activities. Early careful training and discipline are recommended.

HOSPITAL TESTS REVEAL GREAT DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

At last—here's an ideal, "daily" treatment for constipation with its headaches, mental dullness, fatigue and sallow skin.

Tests in a world-famous hospital have proved a "little daily dose" of Kruschen (world-famous formula, now at last obtainable in pleasant tasting "bubbling" form) actually produces nature's own gentle, pleasant, "daily" bowel movements by keeping the waste matter in the colon moist, soft and easy to expel.

Scientists report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Also acts as a mild Antacid and Kidney Stimulant. Gives you MORE for your money, too! A jar that costs only a trifle lasts for WEEKS. Over 245,000,000 jars have been sold thruout the world. Kruschen MUST be good—it MUST do the work! Made in U. S. A.

Don't Be A Driving Woman

By MME. QUI VIVE

Highly energized women, capable and industrious, loving to be busy, seldom give a thought to health, may forget that good looks depend upon physical well being. As long as they can keep on running, they think they are all right. They drive themselves to the limit of endurance, helping others, carrying the loads of other members of the family. Capable women have their hands full.

If you are the head of a family, as many women are, bringing home the bacon and spinach every pay day and keeping your eye on household affairs, lending a hand whenever it is necessary, let me tell you that you are not made of wire and fiddle strings. Everyone should have work to do, the drones and loafers have little to offer in the way of interesting companionship. But rest also is necessary. Rest, relaxation of the nervous system, social life, change of scene now and then. You can't keep your nose to the grindstone all the time and show the world a pretty face.

The trouble with over activity is that one loses the power to relax. One doesn't know how. The first step toward a more tranquil life is to cut out the hurry habit. Make haste slowly. Get up early enough so that you won't have to rush through breakfast. Take time for luncheon.

Mid-morning and mid-afternoon snatch of ten - or - fifteen - minute rest period. Go to the rest room, lie flat on your back on a lounge, close your eyes. Go limp. Let your mind wander. Clear it of work and responsibilities. Unless the mind is tranquil, the body does not rest and the nervous system keeps on edge. Some women have trained themselves to doze for a few minutes. It is a wonderful pick up treatment.

It is possible to rest at one's desk. Drop your hands at your sides, lower the head, fill the lungs slowly with air, breathing way down to your tummy, lift the head slowly, straightening the spine from the lower end, stretching the neck, throwing the head backward. Do that half a dozen times and the weariness of being in the same position for hours will disappear.

Give yourself a half-hour flop before dinner. Make for yourself a new face, removing make-up, then renewing it. That practice is a source of refreshment. Let the cold water run over your wrists. If your neck is tired from leaning over a desk, use cold water there, too.

Don't stint yourself on sleep. You need plenty of it. Have a comfortable bed, good springs and level mattress even if you must economize in other ways. Good food and refreshing sleep are necessary to health. Have a current of air in the bed room. You're indoors all day, should get your lungs air washed.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T OBEY BLINDLY

If your eyes are wide open all the time, you will not merely notice all of the signals given by your partner's cards and then follow them subserviently. There will be rare occasions on which you can see that some defense, entirely different from what your partner can fathom, would produce a better result. In those situations, your job is to disregard his signal and proceed with the defense you have figured out.

North bid 1-Diamond on this deal, South 1-No Trump and North 3-No Trumps. Four spade tricks were rattled off by West, who noticed a come-on signal of the high heart 8 on the last one. This particular West, however, Mrs. Lee Hazen, wife of a national championship winner, and herself a keen card reader, did not act hastily.

Trick counting showed that a heart lead would enable the declarer to run seven consecutive tricks. So, if South happened to have the heart Q, the club A and the club 9 or J, which was quite likely, the declarer would squeeze East. The latter, retaining the heart K and the club K-Q, would build up the game trick for the declarer by her discard on the last diamond. If she threw the heart K, the Q would be good; if she tossed one of her two clubs, the declarer would get the extra trick in that suit.

Mrs. Hazen therefore did not lead a heart to the fifth trick, but a club. This broke up communication with the declarer's two holdings prematurely, beating the contract a trick.

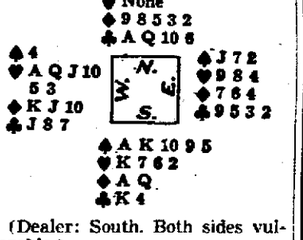
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After South bids 1-Spade on this deal and West 2-Hearts, what should North do?

Read to Pre-School Children

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

I CAN think of no better training in habits of concentration in the child than for parents to read to him, beginning as soon as he will listen, before he is two years old, and continuing past the time he enters school.

Begin with a well-illustrated book which has little reading matter, such as "Johnny Crow's Garden," by Leslie Brooks, or a well-pictured book of nursery rhymes. The tot looks at the picture as you read about it. Gradually what he hears you read connects up in his little mind with what he sees. What you read enriches what he sees in the picture.

Quit When He Squirms.

As soon as he grows restless and wishes to squirm and run about, close the book and put it away. You don't cultivate good habits of concentration if you read while the youngster is on the move. After several weeks of experience at listening while he sees a picture, he gradually will learn to wait and listen while you read from a page without pictures.

Since one does not need to know much in order to read to the young child, we dads can do it. It is our chance to win the child's companionship and relieve the weary mother.

As we read to the little child we fire his imagination, give him something to think about and talk about. We also give him excellent patterns of language.

The child who has been read to from infancy usually has easy, forceful speech later at home and school. As we read to him he hears better language patterns than he would hear if we told the story, and he hears them in exactly the same way over and over again. Indeed, if we should miscall a single word, he will correct us.

Encourages Reading.

We thus motivate him to want to learn to read so he can get such precious stories from the book for himself. Besides, the book from which we read these stories takes on a personality and the child grows tender and careful in the handling of this book.

The older child can read to the younger child, causing both to feel more kindly towards each other. The older child can improve his reading skill with this practice.

Nothing makes me happier than to learn from many parents who read this column that they have been reading to their young children. Judging from the letters I receive, thousands of my readers are reading to their tots every day. Indeed, many of my readers have written me, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it, to ask for a list of good books to read to the baby and young child. Others may have this list in like fashion.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. What about tickling children?

A. Some adults, even parents, and older children, for self-amusement, tickle the young child. In doing so they excite the child unduly, rendering him less stable emotionally, and visiting on him a great deal of unhappiness. Don't fool yourself. Even though the tickled child may laugh heartily, he is liable to be under tension.

Q. I once tried having my five-year-old boy sit on a chair to punish him. He said he liked it and I gave it up as ineffectual.

A. Your child outsmarted you. Resume this punishment, make the time definite, say 20 minutes, and for the same offense apply exactly the same penalty. Quit talking and arguing.

She will receive the residue of the estate after the cash bequests are paid.

GIRL AT THE FRONT + + + + +

By ROB EDEN

(Copyright, 1940)

CHAPTER XII

If Claire was surprised at finding Rene Martin as her pilot, her surprise was shared by the dashing young aviator who, as Danny Brooks had told her, cheerfully gave up a brilliant future in the Ministry of War to do his bit for his country in the air.

Captain Martin recovered first, and smiled broadly at the American girl.

"Well, fancy meeting you here," he said, facetiously. He handed down a parachute and with the help of Captain Le Fevre she adjusted the straps over her shoulders and snapped the belt securely about her waist. She listened carefully as Le Fevre told her how to use the 'chute in case of an emergency.

"You merely go overboard, count ten slowly, and then give the ring a hard pull," he said.

"Sounds simple," Claire remarked.

"You haven't lived until you've become a member of the Caterpillar Club," Rene laughed. "All right—jump in and we'll be on our way."

"It's really a pleasure," he continued as she settled into her place in the two-seat pursuit plane, "to be flying a friend. Usually it's some one I've never seen before and I always have a nervous feeling that they may knock me on the head with a wrench or jab a gun in my back. All right, hold on, here we go."

He waved to the mechanics, who jerked the chocks from in front of the wheels, speeded up his motor, and the plane started to move. In a moment it was racing down the runway and almost instantly started to rise.

* * *

Claire had flown many times before but always in transport planes, never in a small wasplike ship like this. As the wind tore at her face and hair she was grateful for the helmet Le Fevre had given her and the goggles she slipped over her eyes. It was an exhilarating experience, one she'd never forget, she knew.

The plane climbed with breathtaking speed, and then leveled off as Rene headed northward. He turned and motioned to Claire to put the earphones on and started a gay conversation as though they were seated together at a cafe, instead of two miles up in the air, racing along at nearly 200 miles an hour.

"We're headed for Metz," he told her, "and there we'll change to another plane which I'll fly into Germany."

"How far?" she asked.

"Just outside of Berlin," he answered. "I certainly was surprised to see you. I didn't know you were in the service."

"I'm not," she said. "That is, I haven't been until today when someone put this plan up to me to try to reach Bill Cameron. Naturally, I took it."

She felt herself blushing as Rene hummed "L'amour, toujour, l'amour" into the mouthpiece, and then glanced over his shoulder at her, grinning.

"You've made this trip before—into Germany, I mean?" she asked.

"On an average of twice a week. It's great sport. Much more fun than sitting about a stuffy office at the Ministry, making a career for myself."

"But, isn't it dangerous?"

He shrugged and didn't answer. Instead, he put the plane into a dive. Claire felt herself pushed back against the back of her bucket sea as though a heavy hand were shoving her. The lights of a city loomed up at a distance. Rene skirted it, then a minute later was dropping down rapidly and soon she felt the wheels of the undercarriage skimming along the concrete runway as smoothly as a car skimming along a level road.

* * *

With a swoop, Rene turned the plane and it headed toward a large hangar. Several men in uniform were running toward them, and as Martin brought the plane to a stop they dashed up and took the machine in charge.

Rene was out of his safety belt, climbed down to the ground, and ran off toward the hangar. Claire climbed out and was assisted to the ground by one of the men whom she recognized as an officer.

"Captain Martin?" she asked, puzzled by Rene's disappearance.

"He'll be back presently. He's gone to change his clothes, also his identity. When he returns, he'll be Ober-Lieutenant Hans Murten of the 22nd Aerial Squadron," the officer laughed as he saw the expression on Claire's face.

"Naturally," he went on, "he'll have to fly a German plane—impersonate a German officer. His papers will be in perfect order. If anything should go wrong, he has every chance to get away with his deception until he can get help from one of our people."

"I see," Claire said.

* * *

The officer handed her a passport and a purse of German money, then took her gas mask from her and gave her one of German make.

"From the moment you leave this field," he said, "you must remember that your name is Clara Dietrich. This is the way you are described in the passport. The dangerous part for you is if something should happen to the plane. Rene would have a pretty hard time explaining to a Nazi officer how he happened to have a pretty girl in his ship, even if his papers are in order.

"After he leaves you, your danger will be much less. You will have your passport for identification. You speak German well, I am told, so you should have no trouble on that score." He paused and turned at the sound of approaching footsteps. Claire gasped. Rene was approaching, but it was an entirely different Rene from the smart Frenchman she had known. His whole appearance seemed to take on a changed aspect with his donning a Nazi uniform. There was an arrogance, a conceit reflected in his features that had not been there before. His disguise went much deeper than a mere change of clothing. He actually, for the time, became a German officer.

"Ready, Fraulein Dietrich?" he snapped at her.

"Ready, Herr Lieutenant," she answered, and was rewarded by a smile as his features relaxed for a moment into the familiar devil-may-care expression characteristic of Rene Martin.

A German-made parachute replaced the one she had been wearing, and she stepped into a plane half again as large as the one in which they had flown from the Chamonix field. It bore the Nazi insignia.

Once in the cockpit, she adjusted the earphones without prompting, and a mintue later they were in the air, with the shouts of goodbye and best of luck from the men on the ground still ringing in their ears.

Rene circled and circled, gaining altitude, keeping the Metz field in sight until he reached an altitude of 12,000 feet, and then with a flirt of his wings set a course northeast.

"Well, here we go, Claire," he called through the earphones. "Far down below us, where you see those orange-colored flashes, is our Maginot Line. Fifty miles up ahead there, although it doesn't seem that far from this height, is the Siegfred Line, tossing tons of steel back at our fortresses."

* * *

It was fascinating to peer over the edge of the cockpit and see the bright bursts of fire more than two miles below them, with occasional flares soaring into the air and bursting far underneath them.

It wasn't long until they were well past the long lines of fortresses, and well over Germany. Rene had been silent for some time when Claire was startled to hear his voice suddenly lifted gaily in song. He was singing the "Marseillaise!" The surge of the national anthem of France sent cold thrills chasing up and down her spine, and she found herself humming the air, too, into the mouthpiece strapped in front of her mouth.

Surely, she thought, no man and woman ever had sung that song before during wartime two miles in the air over German territory, and she smiled as she wondered what the Nazis would think if they could somehow hear them shouting a defiant song to the heavens.

She turned on the small light in the dash in front of her fished the false passport from her purse, and examined it closely. It had a picture of her, all right. The same picture that was in her American passport. Where it had been obtained she had no idea and refused to puzzle over it. She was beginning to believe that anything was possible to an efficient organization such as France had engaged in counter-espionage work.

* * *

Her name was printed out, Clara Dietrich, 24, with a Berlin address. Her occupation was given as a stenographer. She memorized the address carefully, repeating it over and over to herself so that in case she were asked to give it suddenly, it would roll glibly off her tongue.

The ground beneath was in complete darkness as the plane sped along. It was cold so high in the air, and she was glad she had accepted a heavy flying jacket from the officer before she left the field at Metz. She would have been half frozen without it.

The only sound she could hear was the steady droning of the motor and when it suddenly stopped, the silence seemed deafening in contrast. She looked nervously at the back of Rene's head. He didn't seem excited or worried. He apparently knew what he was doing. She felt the plane diving, and then a few moments later saw a brief flash of bright light. Then there was black darkness again. How Rene had found the crude field in the dark she never knew; he must have used some sort of magic.

In contrast to the smooth landing at Metz, this was a bumpy one, the plane careening and bouncing over the ground and finally coming to an abrupt stop.

Jail Instead of Prize Awarded Ace Contestant

NEW YORK — (INS) — Knowing that he couldn't lose, Clifford Turner, 47, submitted his answers to a newspaper football score contest last October and sat back to find out if the contest was really "on the level."

His answers were perfect, but instead of a prize, he has finally been awarded a 30-day jail sentence for fraudulent use of the mail.

Pleading guilty, Turner told how he had marked his selections on Saturday night after the games had been played. And having once worked as a postal clerk, he explained, it was a simple matter for him to put the Thursday stamp on the letter which he mailed that Saturday night.

Starting in a drizzling rain from Gilmore Stadium, Los Angeles, this 85 h.p. Ford V-8 stock sedan used less gas in climbing two mountain ranges in stormy weather than any other standard-equipped car in its price class.

The Ford V-8, without special equipment, averaged 24.92 miles per gallon—2.05 miles per gallon better than one car in its price class and 2.38 miles per gallon better than another.

MERCURY 8, 23.76 MILES PER GALLON

MERCURY 8

Up the winding road through the high Sierras the Mercury races to a record of unheard-of economy and the undisputed leadership of its price class.

Mercury's meteoric rise in one short year to a place among the first ten best sellers is the result of sheer ability to out-perform other cars.

Mercury performance in the Gilmore Yosemite economy run sustains every claim made by thousands of enthusiastic owners.

LINCOLN-ZEPHYR V-12 19.9 MILES PER GALLON

The most startling revelation of the Gilmore Yosemite run is that the overdrive axle-equipped Lincoln-Zephyr, the only 12-cylinder car in its price class, showed the best gasoline mileage—19.9 miles per gallon, 2.78 miles per gallon better than the record of the car placing second.

Lewis' Political Leadership Now Facing Popular Test

CONVENTION READY TO HEAR LEADER'S PLAN

Delegates Hear New Attack on Administration; Perkins Dubbed 'Hottentot.'

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—John L. Lewis' political leadership may get a popular test from his United Mine Workers union today.

The resolutions committee of the union's annual convention was ready to report a resolution shelving 47 local union resolutions urging that President Roosevelt be drafted for a third term, and embodying Lewis' recommendation that no specific candidate be endorsed now, but empowering the executive board to act later.

There was no indication of any organized opposition to Lewis' proposal among the 2,400 delegates despite the "draft" Roosevelt resolutions which came fro·· nine states.

There was no clear indication of the extent of a reported rank-and-file objection to Lewis' attacks on Mr. Roosevelt and administration officials. UMW officials acknowledged receipt of approximately 20 local union declarations taking exceptions to Lewis' speeches. One official said that they represented less than "one-half of one per cent" of the union's 600,000 members.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was the latest administration official to be attacked by Lewis. He said she didn't "know as much about economics or the problems affecting this country as a hottentot does about the moral laws."

The delegates unanimously urged the administration to take positive action to find jobs for the unemployed by summoning a national economic conference to seek solutions to basic problems.

Mr. Roosevelt was criticized for failing to issue an executive order forbidding letting government contracts to corporations which have been found guilty by the National Labor Relations board of violating the Wagner act.

Speakers charged that Republic Steel corporation, Bethlehem Steel corporation, the Ford Motor company, the Electric Boat company, and the Douglas Aircraft corporation were obtaining government contracts.

The only note of approval of any Roosevelt program was unanimous approval of his efforts to keep the United States out of war.

The largest single banquet in the city's history was served last night. More than 2,500 persons attended the union's golden jubilee banquet and heard brief speeches by Lewis, Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy and West Virginia district UMW President Van A. Bittner.

Miss Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury and now chairman of Mr. Roosevelt's inter-departmental committee on health, was the only scheduled convention speaker today.

Clevelander Who Donated Hundred Fortunes, Victim of Infection.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Edward S. Harkness, 66, who never made a public speech or gave an interview although he donated $100,000,000 to education and health, died last night of a pancreas infection.

The fortune of Harkness, a native of Cleveland, stemmed from that of his father, Stephen V., whose early partnership with John D. Rockefeller, sr., in founding Standard Oil brought millions to the family.

He was inherently shy, and many of his philanthropies were kept in deepest secrecy.

He had been ill only a few weeks. At his bedside was his widow, only close survivor. The couple had no children.

Harkness made almost a business—but an extremely quiet one—of philanthropy, keeping a staff of secretaries to hunt out new and deserving outlets for his wealth.

He gave approximately $25,000,000 to Yale university, his alma mater; nearly $12,000,000 to Harvard; $11,0000,000 to Columbia; $1,000,000 to the New York public library and smaller sums to scores of smaller colleges in many states.

With his mother, the former Anna M. Richardson, he gave a 20-acre tract in upper Manhattan for the vast medical center which bears his name—the Harkness pavilion.

Associates said his bequests, spread over the vast field of charity, education and civic enterprises, ran more than $100,000,000.

He was a director of the New York Central Lines, the Southern Pacific company, and many more railroad and transportation companies.

Harkness gave $1,000,000 to the building campaign for Western Reserve university's medical group in 1927 and two years later endowed Flora Matcher college of the university with $200,000.

Although maintaining a home in the east since his graduation from Yale, Harkness maintained an interest in Cleveland affairs and permitted many pictures from his collection to be exhibited at the Cleveland museum of art.

PROTESTS WHEN SEAMAN PULLS HIM FROM ICE

Dazed Youth Saved From River by Mariner in Perilous Canoe Dash.

(By United Press)

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y. —Constable Amos Voetsch went out into the Niagara river in a canoe last night and rescued 14-year-old Richard Abby, who sat on an ice cake drifting toward Niagara Falls.

The rescue was made in midstream, 10 miles above the Falls, 30 minutes after Joseph Dey, a riverman, had heard calls for help as he worked on the river bank at dusk.

Dey saw the boy bobbing along the channel of the ice-clogged river and ran to a nearby hotel to summon aid. Police and firemen raced to a landing downstream with a supply wagon carrying ropes, ladders and a canoe. They estimated the time it would take the boy to drift to the landing, and made ready with the boat.

A rope was tied to one end of the canoe. Voetsch, a master mariner, chose the most difficult assignment. He got into the frail boat and paddled out from shore while those on the bank held to the other end of the rope to keep him from drifting away.

In a few minutes the boy on the ice cake loomed into sight. Voetsch paddled furiously across the channel. As he neared the boy, he shouted:

"What are you doing out here, young man?"

"What's it to you?" the boy called back.

Canoe Tilts.

Those ashore could see a struggle as the canoe and ice floe met in mid-stream. The canoe tilted perilously but Voetsch quickly got the boy aboard and was hauled ashore by the rope.

He still clutched the boy who seemed oblivious to his peril and defiant at rescue.

Physicians said the boy was weak from shock and exposure, but would suffer no ill effects.

His explanation of how he happened to be adrift was vague, but Voetsch believed he had been playing on the shoulder-high ice cakes piled along the river banks and had stepped on a loose floe which drifted away with him.

The rescuer said the boy had to be "firmly persuaded" to get into the canoe. Asked whether he hadn't been afraid to tackle the river in a canoe, Voetsch said, "Heck no, I've got my captain's papers."

FAIR ENOUGH!

England Is Willing To Leave U. S. Big Share of European War, Peg Says

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The New York correspondent of Lord Beaverbrook's London Express has written a candid article about the Americans which has been cabled back here by the London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News.

The New York correspondent of the London Express advises his countrymen to ignore American public opinion in the matter of the mail seizures and, in effect, to continue to treat us rough, lest the Americans be given to suspect the English are trying to woo us into their war.

He is convinced that we are convinced that the United States must go into the war, anyway, and his report on the state of our mind adjures the English to give us no reason to think that in fighting on their side we would be doing them a favor which might call for a show of gratitude later on.

* * *

It becomes more apparent that the English are not at all selfish about this war, but are willing to grant the United States a big share of it, wars being the one article with which the English are generous to this nation.

They are willing to cut us in for a piece of it, but, for our own self-respect, want us to think it was rightfully our own and not a gift from them.

* * *

It must be written now that no kick or swipe from England will be regarded as sufficient cause to take up arms against England in this war and that England will be careful always to do nothing that would arouse us emotionally against her.

Interference with our mails or ships will not arouse our emotions, because mails, merchandise and boats do not bleed or moan. And, meanwhile, the Germans, with their unerring stupidity, are starving and freezing the wretched Poles and degrading millions of captives into the status of Class B, C and D members of the human race, and the Jews into a subhuman classification, all to the great emotional distress of millions of Americans of Austrian, Czech, Polish and Jewish persuasion, and to the ominous alarm of our Scandinavians, who foresee the elaboration of the Stalin-Hitler war on Finland.

* * *

These are the dramatic factors which will arouse the Americans to the point of war against England's enemies without their knowing or even suspecting that the American war interest lies not in Europe, but in collaboration with the British in the Pacific.

So it does seem that Lord Beaverbrook's correspondent is right and that the British already have us hooked, and the only possible objection on our part lies against the fate which makes it necessary to be comradely with a breed of people so bleak, selfish, unlovely, hypocritical, cunning, supercilious, rude and, of themselves and their country, unimportant as the English.

* * *

When this nation was not so many years younger, the English were by habit openly insulting toward everything American, and the change from a rather threatening nastiness to a cold and sneering superiority, like the abrupt change from bulldozing arrogance to peace-loving patience in China, has been due to no change of heart, but to change in strength.

There is no reason for us to love them or to deceive ourselves with notions of altruism or nobility on their part.

For American self-respect, then, let it be understood that if we must enter the war in either theater, we do so for practical reasons of our own, and that it is not for love, but for military and political convenience that we collaborate with an ally with a heart notoriously too full of greed to have any room for nobility, generosity, honesty or friendship.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Movie ideas are coquettish little varmints. They flit around, evasive almost as the snipe you once hunted as a tenderfoot camper, and once in a month of double-features they alight—smacko!—in the right place.

At RKO studios, on Gower street in Hollywood, Garson Kanin is directing "My Favorite Wife." This is Director Leo McCarey's first effort as a non-directing producer. He has Cary Grant, Irene Dunne, and Gail Patrick involved in a comedy triangle.

* * *

At Columbia studios, on Gower street in Hollywood, Producer-Director Wesley Ruggles is making "Too Many Husbands." He has Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas involved in a comedy triangle.

The RKO picture, by Sam and Bella Spewack, concerns the plight of a fellow (Grant) who loses his wife (Dunne) in a shipwreck and, seven years later, when she is adjudged legally dead, marries again. He and the new bride (Patrick) are en route to the bridal suite of the hotel when they meet Wife No. 1, who wasn't dead after all.

The Columbia picture, suggested by the Somerset Maugham play of the same title, concerns the plight of a girl (Arthur) who loses her husband (MacMurray) in a shipwreck and, sometime later when he is adjudged legally dead, marries again—her late husband's business partner (Douglas). They are happily at home when in steps Husband No. 1, who wasn't dead after all.

Now both pictures have good ideas—good even before Tennyson wrote "Enoch Arden"—and playing them for comedy makes them even better. But why did those ideas, practically identical, have to light in two producing heads at once?

* * *

Getting wind of their stories' similarities, Ruggles and McCarey conferred immediately, found differences a-plenty outside of the basic situation involved, and both are proceeding happily.

"We start alike," as Ruggles put it, "and branch out on different lines from there."

Ruggles and Claude Binyon (whose sixth script for Ruggles it is) have taken only the title and the Enoch Arden angle from the Maugham play, which had two husbands trying to get rid of one wife rather than fighting over her. Fight? MacMurray and Douglas today had practically demolished an apartment, proof that MacMurray isn't playing the meek Enoch's role as Tennyson wrote it.

"Comedy?" I saked Ruggles.

"I hope so!" he replied characteristically, grinning.

Cary Grant, concerning his "Favorite Wife," had more than hopes. Optimism about a script during filming is supposed to be premature if not actually fate-tempting. Hooey, said Cary. If you get a good thing you can know it's good from the start, and you don't have to bother about superstitions, no sir!

The set-up here, of course, is one to make any actor sneer at black cats and do cartwheels under ladders: it's the McCarey-Dunne-Grant combination that made "The Awful Truth," with that original young chap Kanin thrown in for added hit-insurance!

Glover Reaches Finals In Cleveland Golden Gloves

By CHARLES MARTIN

BEAUFORD GLOVER today holds an honor no other Mansfield amateur fighter ever possessed.

It is the distinction of being a finalist in the open division of the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament.

* * * * *

Glover, who has been having a hard time the past year in finding worthy opponents in this district, gained a spot in the finals of the lightweight division of the 12th annual classic with a nifty slugging exhibition before some 6,000 enthusiastic spectators at Public Auditorium last night.

* * * * *

But, while Glover was coming through with flying colors, two other Friendly House entries, Paul Carbetta and Al Sauers, were left by the roadside.

Carbetta, a favorite in the 112-pound class in the open division, dropped a close decision to Buddy Smallwood, Akron Smallwood A. C. representative, while Sauers bowed out of the picture losing a decision to Val Boston, Cleveland Tenner A. C.

After a slow opening round in which he didn't land a solid punch, Glover came roaring back and practically used Jimmy Kintz, Cleveland Downs A. C., as a punching bag.

Kintz, whom the experts thought had a fine chance of eliminating Glover, put up a nice fight in that initial period. But early in the second stanza, with Kintz going strong, Glover sent over a terrific right hook that caught his rival in the solar plexus.

That stunning blow turned the tide of battle and Kintz wasn't in it the rest of the way. Glover, who has lost only two fights in 42 ring appearances, had Kintz groggy near the end of the round with another left to the same spot.

Kintz tried to weather the storm by holding on in the third frame, but Glover had other ideas. He peppered the Clevelander with a flock of right crosses and then let loose his pile-driving left again. Twice he had Kintz on the ropes, but Kintz tied Glover up enough to keep from taking the knockout powder.

Carbetta was also slow getting under way against the clever Akron boy. The first round went to Smallwood after he halted the settlement youngster several times with hard rights.

The Mansfielder, who was missing frequently with his usually potent right, rallied to cop the second heat, but faded before Smallwood's lightning-like jabs in the final period. Carbetta, apparently, was far off in his timing, and outside of a couple of times in the second, didn't land a solid clout.

* * * * *

Sauers met up with a right uppercut in his setto with Boston and just couldn't keep away from it. Boston, who looked like a polished novice, kept landing that right every time Sauers tried to move in. By the end of the second Sauers was slowing up, and in the third he was unable to do much about the situation.

* * * * *

Boston, who now is the class of the 160-pounders in the novice division, took the last two rounds by a wide margin. He had a height advantage on Sauers and the inexperienced Ontario lad, a great body puncher, didn't get close enough.

Glover went back to the training camp today to prepare for the finals which will be held in Public Hall at 8:30 p. m. Friday.

One thing that may have had considerable to do with Carbetta's inability to use his left effectively was a knuckle injury. The flyweight cut the knuckle of his left hand last week and it failed to heal. He went into the fight with the finger slightly swollen.

Zale Defeats Champ Hostak

Mike Jacobs Unimpressed With Middle King.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Tony Zale, an artful young veteran with a jaw every bit as tough as the finest steel ever turned out at the mills around his home in Gary, Ind., removed all hope of a quick settlement of the middleweight muddle today by his unanimous decision over Champion Al Hostak of Seattle.

Hostak now is confirmed as a champion with brittle hands. He injured his lethal left in the fifth round last night and the fight went out of him so quickly he looked like a different man.

* * *

One minute he was a raging tiger—of the sort Dempsey once was. Before him was a reeling, shell-shocked Zale, his jaw twisted from pain and the steady rain of left hooks. In the next, the dynamite had fizzled out, spent against Zale's steel jaw.

* * *

From that moment in the fifth round Hostak was just another fighter. He was a man Mike Jacobs did NOT want for his projected championship bout with that other middleweight king, Ceferino Garcia of the Philippines.

Jacobs hiked back to New York on the first plane apparently content to let the National Boxing association championship go back across the Rockies. He still holds promotional rights on Garcia, who is recognized as champion by the New York and California commissions.

Ashland Coach Sure His Club Will Win

Longley Says Proteges Will Halt Mansfield High Quintet In Tussle Tonight.

THIS is one game Ashland high will win."

That was the statement Coach "Red" Longley made to Vern Hoffman recently in reference to the Mansfield-Ashland court battle tonight at Ashland.

Whether his prediction holds good or not remains to be seen, but the fast-stepping Ashland warriors enter the contest tonight as slight favorites.

* * *

The Ashland combine, which holds the runner-up position in the North Central Ohio conference race, possesses a potent scoring attack and the Tygers will have to be at their best to emerge with a triumph.

* * *

Mentor Vern Hoffman doesn't expect to make any lineup changes after the way the team upset a favored Bellevue outfit last Friday, but if the starting five doesn't hold its own against the Ashlanders you can look for a number of replacements.

Hoffman shifted Jack Shiplet, a sophomore forward, into a guard berth against Bellevue and the lad turned in a stellar performance. He uses Shiplet as a guard on offense and switches him back to a forward on defense.

Don Rose, who is stationed at the other guard spot, suffered a back injury in the Bellevue setto, but Hoffman believes he will be able to play tonight.

* * *

There is a chance that either Philips or Burkholder, a pair of promising guards will see action against Ashland, Hoffman stated today.

* * *

The contest will mark one of the two appearances Mansfield will make this week. The Tygers return to face Akron West in the Senior high gymnasium Friday night.

Athletics Get McCoy

Give Free Agent Second Sacker $45,000 Bonus, $10,000 Annual Salary.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—(AP)—Connie Mack's dream of one last great championship team may be realized in 1941, Earle Mack, son and assistant to the 77-year-old leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, predicted today as he left for home a winner in the most heated bidding contest for a player major league baseball has ever known.

In the younger Mack's pocket was a contract signed by Bennie McCoy, the free agent second baseman, obtained at a cost of a $45,000 bonus and an agreement for a $10,000 annual salary for 1940 and 1941.

* * *

McCoy signed for the record-breaking amount late yesterday exactly 15 days after Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis declared him a free agent along with 90 other Detroit Tiger chattels.

* * *

At first base Philadelphia will have Dick Seibert, who showed much promise last season. McCoy, who batted .302 in 55 games for Detroit in 1939, will hold down second while Bill Lillard, classy recruit from San Francisco, will be at shortstop, Mack said. Al Rubeling, for whom the Athletics paid Atlanta a healthy $35,000, is due to play third.

Brig Young Leads Club League Scoring With Big 683 Series

BRIG YOUNG showed the youngsters how to do it last night when he slammed his mineralite in the "1-3" pocket for a 683 count to establish the individual scoring pace in the Club league at the Meder alleys.

Bowling with the American Legion entry, Young came through with games of 202, 256 and 225 as he led his teammates to a 2885 total, which produced three wins over the Mansfield Savings Bank. Pete Grohol contributed a 612 to the Legion total.

The Optimists took a firmer grip on first place by winning on a forfeit from the J. A. C. club, which failed to put in an appearance. The "sweep" put the Optimists one game in front of the Lumbermens Mutuals, who took two tilts from the Page Dairys. Ed Meder of the Dairys, who hit 2842, and Art Hilborn of the Optimists shot scores of 607 and 600.

In the other matches, the Richman Clothes took three games from the Liederkranz club, the Tracy & Avery five won three from the Kiwanis club and the Schoolmasters added two wins at the expense of the Commercial Managers.

W. Seller of the Ritz Night club came through with a 617 total to account for the only 600 in the Commercial C league. The Ritz team reached 2603 as it swept its series with the Siegenthaler Shoes.

Campolo Wins Initial Test

NEWARK, N. J. —(INS)— It didn't take Valentin Campolo long to make good in these dear United States.

In stopping Jim Robinson in Newark, Campolo today has earned a "shot" at Buddy Baer. With that goal in sight, Campolo went in to score a victory or die in the attempt; he didn't die, and in winning with a knockout in 1:25 of the ninth of a ten-round bout, he moved right up with the leaders who are champing on the bit to fight Joe Louis, for the losers' end. Campolo will stop Buddy Baer, it is believed.

* * *

As a second "Wild Bull of the Pampas," Valentin Campolo may be only a "sacred cow" yet, on his showing against Jim Robinson, of Philadelphia, here at Laurel Garden, the wee six-foot 4-inch brother of Vittorio is going to lick a lot of young huskies.

Robinson was far out in front when he collapsed under a terrific onslaught. A right to the jaw staggered him to begin with, and then a one-two put Robinson down against the ropes for a count of nine. When Jim got up he was helpless.

Present Card Monday Night

Tim Nolan of Quality Club Named Matchmaker for Grapple Party In Armory Ring.

A WRESTLING MATCH will be staged in the Armory ring Monday night for the Finnish Relief Fund.

Tim Nolan, rotund Quality club promoter, will serve as matchmaker for the presentation, which, according to present plans, will include four matches.

All of the proceeds above the necessary expenses will be turned over to The News-Journal, agent for the Finnish fund in this city.

Nolan stated today that he will attempt to arrange an all-star card, including several world's champions, for the relief fund, which will be staged at popular prices.

* * *

One of the matmen likely to appear on Monday's charity card is the rough-and-tough Masked Marvel, who is undefeated in something like 94 straight matches.

* * *

The mysterious person made quick work of his foe on the weekly card at the Armory before a fair-sized crowd last night when he tossed Charles Layden of Fort Wayne.

The match, part of the double wind-up, was scheduled for two out of three falls, but Layden was unable to continue after the first fall.

After 30 minutes of grappling, the masked person rushed Layden to the ropes, and the latter was easy prey after the Masked Marvel twisted a strand of hemp around his neck.

Layden was released by the referee and he was immediately slammed by the Masked Marvel. The Hoosier was unable to return for the next fall and the match was awarded to the Masked Marvel.

The other half of the double wind-up went to Walter Stratton, weight-lifting champ of Leetonia, who won over Walter (Sneeze) Achiu, former Dayton U. grid star.

This match also was a slugging affair, with Stratton winning the first fall with an arm lock in 17 minutes. Achiu evened the match in 16 minutes with a step-over toe-hold.

* * *

The climax of the third and deciding fall came in eight minutes when Stratton applied a flying arm-lock.

* * *

LOU AMBERS WINS

Resume League Play Thursday Evening.

City Class A league teams will resume championship play at Mansfield high school Thursday night with a two-game program. League play was interrupted last week due to the Finnish Fund program staged on the court.

Thursday's games will pit Shelley's Chocolates against Westinghouse at 7:30 p. m., and Blue Goose against Yuncker Sports at 8:30.

Old Jock Turns Pro

Sutherland, Ex-Pittsburgh Coach, Signs Contract With Brooklyn.

By WICK TEMPLE

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Jock Sutherland is turning pro at the risk of one of the best football coaching records in the business.

* * *

The 50-year old Scot who directed Pitt grid destinies for 15 years has accepted a three-year contract to pilot the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional league.

* * *

"I never coached a loser and I hope to continue that record," declared the bachelor dental instructor long famous as a maker of All-Americans.

"If I did not believe I could make a go of pro football I certainly would not have assumed my new position. No one likes to win any more than I do, and I will try my utmost to give Brooklyn fans a winner."

And that comes from an affable fellow who thinks "football has been good to me" what with an enviable collegiate record of 144 victories, 14 ties and only 28 defeats in 20 years. He coached five years at Lafayette before going to Pitt.

* * *

Sports writers sighed in relief with announcement yesterday of Sutherland's hiring by Dodger Owner Dan Topping. Ever since Jock quit at Pitt in last spring's athletic upheaval they've been running down rumors connecting him with every coaching vacancy.

* * *

The pro world had only praise for the long-reported deal. "It is one of the finest steps the league has made," commented President Carl L. Storck of the national circuit.

Carpenter had little Bobby Mercer to thank today for enabling the club to remain in a tie for first place with Bushnell in the hectic Grade School basketball league race.

The forward tallied all points—three goals and a pair of free throws—as Carpenter stopped a fighting Western club, 8 to 3, at Senior high yesterday.

MEAGER PRICE CHANGES RULE SLUGGISH MART

Traders Are Inclined to Keep Decks Clear for Possible New Commitments.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market today just about duplicated the pattern of Monday with leaders continuing to hog a narrow ledge. Inconsequential price changes either way was the rule. Dealings were sluggish.

Bonds and commodities improved in spots. European markets were hesitant.

With little change in the news picture, and the speculative buying urge remaining somnolent, most traders inclined to keep decks clear in the way of new commitments.

Brokerage quarters, studying federal reserve figures for market clues, found that reporting banks in 101 cities, for the week ended Jan. 17, suffered a decrease of $14,000,000 in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans. The total for this item is now $100,000,000 under the seasonal peak of $4,416,000,000 reached on last December 13.

Noted also were surveys of manufacturers' inventories which, while expanding steadily since August, were expected to show little increase in January.

OHIO WILL SUE FOR PENSIONS

Attorney General Plans Case Against Federal Government in Controversy.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The United States Supreme court will be asked to compel the Federal government to pay to the state of Ohio $1,388,000 withheld from old age pension funds in October 1938, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert indicated today.

President Roosevelt last week vetoed the Jenkins bill passed by congress which would have reimbursed the state treasury for the amount of the claim.

The attorney general said the state is preparing the "groundwork" for an appeal to the nation's highest court. The state will base its case on two contentions:

First, that there was always substantial compliance on the part of the state with the social security board's requirements, and

Second, that the social security act did not contemplate a complete forfeiture of federal contributions, but only a withholding of the contributions until the state, which administers aid for the aged, complied with the orders of the board.

The funds were withheld during a controversy between former-Gov. Martin L. Davey and the board. The board charged that Davey was using old age administration "for political purposes."

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Removal charges on file with the State Civil Service commission today sought to oust Bernard A. Vortkamp and Charles D. Cole as custodians of Memorial hall at Lima.

JURIES CONVENE SAME MORNING

Grand and Petit Panels Hold First Sessions Thursday Under New Schedule.

The January grand and petit juries will convene within a half hour of each other Thursday under a revised court schedule set up today by C. A. McKinley, county assignment clerk.

Scheduled originally to begin its new term today, the petit jury's program was re-arranged after two cases on the calendar were continued and the jury was waived in another.

First to come before the petit jury at 9 a. m. Thursday will be a $5,000 personal damage suit against Olive E. Talbot, owner of an apartment building at 245 Park avenue west.

Plaintiff in the case is R. Belle Anderson, Mansfield, who contends she fell down a stairway at the apartment and was injured last Feb. 19 because there was no railing at the side of the stairs.

Attys. Voegele, Hutchison and Schettler represent the plaintiff and Stuart H. Cramer is defense counsel.

With 15 cases on the docket, the new grand jury will convene at 8:30 a. m. for a session that is expected to last only one day. More than 40 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify.

SEVERE COLD HITS PEACHES

OSU Experts See 75 Per Cent Cut In 1940 Crop In Ohio.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio's 1940 peach crop will be almost 75 per cent below normal because of damage done by the severe cold spell, Ohio State university horticulturists estimated today.

Reports to the university revealed that about a 50 per cent loss would be realized in the Ashtabula area and approximately 75 per cent in the Port Clinton and other peach producing areas along Lake Erie.

Farther south, growers reported, their 1940 crop would be almost a complete loss.

Damage to other fruits by the abnormal cold weather was negligible, reports said.

State agriculture department experts said winter wheat had been aided instead of hurt by the cold wave, as snow has been on the ground during most of the month.

Cagney Furnishes Comedy.

Continuing through Thursday at the Ohio is "The Fighting 69th," which is a story of a famous regiment. It is symbolic of all the regiments which have served under the American flag. The drama, filled with comedy, focuses on James Cagney, as an arrogant and incorrigible young recruit who doesn't give a hoot for the traditions of the Fighting 69th during training and can't stand up to the hard codes of his own, simple soldier's duties.

"Our Neighbors-the Carters"

Fay Bainter and Frank Craven, outstanding players on stage and screen for many years, are seen together for the first time as man and wife on the screen in the new drama "Our Neighbors—the Carters," which opens Wednesday at the Madison theater. This picture casts Miss Bainter as Ellen Carter, devoted wife and loving mother of five children. The co-feature for Wednesday and Thursday will be "The Llano Kid," which is based on a famous O. Henry short story. The scene is laid in Mexico and five Latin-flavored tunes add to the show.

Comedy and Drama.

Adolphe Menjou, star of some of last season's most notable screen successes, and Roger Daniel, already being hailed as the juvenile screen find of the year, head the cast of "King of the Turf," which opens Wednesday at the Park theater. Also coming to the Park for a two-day run is a brilliant romatic drama starring Paul Cavanaugh and Marcella Chantal, entitled "Lost on the Western Front." This picture tells of a strongly emotional story of three lives as they were affected by the World War.

* * *

Dead End Kids Back.

Distinctly on the side of good citizenship, though still tough and aggressive, are the Dead End Kids in their latest picture "The Angels Wash Their Faces," which comes to the Majestic theatre for today, Wednesday and Thursday. Also an addition to the cast is Ann Sheridan. Merle Oberon has her most important and dramatic role to date in the production "Wuthering Heights" which stars her opposite two leading men, Laurence Oliver and David Niven. This is the second feature for the three-day run.

Exciting Features.

"This Man Is News" with Alaistair Sim in the lead, and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" are the features which will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday at the Ritz theatre. The latter screen play unfolds the solution of a series of murders and the incredible super-crime of the century—the theft of the $15,000,000 British crown jewels from the Tower of London. In addition a powerful love story runs through the film. In the cast are Basil Rathbone, Ida Lupino and Alan Marshall.

Would Slash Roosevelt Farm Budget By 20 Per Cent

COMMITTEE IN REPORT RAISES TOUCHY ISSUE

Urges Lopping $788,929,519 From Department of Agriculture Appropriation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A 20 per cent cut in President Roosevelt's farm appropriation estimates was recommended to the house today by its appropriations committee, raising one of the session's touchiest political issues.

For the fiscal year beginning July 1 Mr. Roosevelt asked an appropriation of $788,929,519 for the agriculture department. The committee trimmed this $154,530,263, chiefly by slashing $72,678,812 from the surplus commodity disposal item, $47,975,000 asked for the 1937 sugar act, and $25,000,000 asked for farm tenant loans.

These and various small cuts added up to the largest reduction made in any single major appropriation measure by the committee this session—despite the fact that sentiment for farm spending frequently is stronger than that for any other type of expenditure. Congressional leaders characterize a farm appropriation as the toughest test of an economy movement in congress.

Asserting that no appropriation can ever be said to be wholly adequate, the committee said in its report to the house:

"The current status of federal finances has imposed a necessity for retrenchment and the committee has endeavored to apply the cuts in this bill where they would be the least harmful to the public interest."

The committee said it had been advised that the regular fund for disposal of surplus commodities—30 per cent of all tariff receipts—would amount to about $100,000,000 in 1941, or about $7,500,000 more than was available this year.

It further explained that it felt it was inadvisable to ask the house to increase this automatic fund, which the senate last year boosted by $113,000,000.

As forecast by farm bloc leaders, the committee followed President Roosevelt's suggestions by refusing to ask a $225,000,000 appropriation for parity payments. Last year the house also refused to make such a fund available, but reversed itself upon senate insistence.

The bill contained the usual item of $498,000,000 for soil conservation benefit payments, which have been appropriated annually since the agriculture department's crop control programs were initiated.

Other major cuts below the budget estimates recommended were:

Forest service, $4,620,000; eradication of cattle tuberculosis and Bang's disease, $1,020,000; bureau of Entomology and plant quarantine, $873,000; weather bureau, $605,750; relocation of the nearby Arlington experiment farm, $500,000.

NOT AFTER JOB OF PRESIDENT

Willkie Tells Wooster Friends He'd Take Nomination Only 'Without Any Strings.'

WOOSTER —(AP)— Wendell L. Willkie told Wooster friends last night he has received "thousands" of letters urging him to seek the predency.

"But I'm not running for president," said the head of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation. "Of course, it isn't going to happen, but if the nomination were given to me without any strings I would have to accept it. No man in middle life (Willke is 48 and in good health could do otherwise.

"But I couldn't go out and seek delegates and make two-sided statements. I value my independence. That's what I've been fighting for all these years."

The utilities executive said the letters have arrived at the rate of 200 to 500 a week for several months, and he has answered all of them. Listed in biographies as a Democrat, he has tangled frequently with New Deal agencies—especially the Tennessee Valley authority.

In his address at a banquet commemorating the 70th anniversary of Wooster college, Willkie viewed America's independent colleges as safeguarding the nation's liberties.

"If we ever have a threat of dictatorship in this country, the independent colleges, free from state influence, will be the last refuge of our liberties," he declared. "The lights of liberty are going out all over the world. They can be relit only in America, and only with the help of our school system."

Rome Retorts to Nazi Denials of Polish Outrages

ROME — (INS) — Denials from Berlin of charges of persecution of Catholic priests and others in German-occupied former Poland drew a sharp retort today from the newspaper Avvenire D'Italia, published at Bologna.

The charges, including allegations that priests and hundreds of Polish residents of the area have been shot or jailed, were contained in a report submitted to Pope Pius XII with the authorization of Auguste Cardinal Hlond, primate of Poland.

Excerpts from the report have been broadcast by the Vatican radio, leading to the denials from Berlin.

"We should like to believe that the German denial corresponds with the truth," Avvendire commented.

"But where the Nazi fight against the Catholic church is concerned, we know what official declarations mean only too well to give words their ordinary significance."

"Catholics will prefer, in matters affecting religious life in Poland, the direct evidence of Polish Catholics."

A Reuters (British) dispatch from Paris said a white paper issued by the Polish government-in-exile estimated 18,000 Polish leaders of all classes have been killed by the Nazis in German occupied Poland.

He was arrested in Pittsburgh where police found him with Miss Hutchinson after a month's search.

Father Freed of "William Tell" Slaying Charge

PAULDING—(INS)—Oscar Ball, 48-year-old father, today was free of all charges in the "William Tell" slaying of Louis Straka, 33, whom Ball shot through the forehead from a distance of over 200 feet as Straka trained a gun on Ball's son, Richard.

At the same time, Prosecutor Wilmer D. Rekeweg revealed he was holding Sylvester Wisda, 21, of Sherwood, O., as an alleged accomplice of Straka's. Wisda was indicted late yesterday afternoon on three counts of kidnaping by the Paulding county grand jury.

The prosecutor refused to reveal on what evidence the indictments were returned, but it was believed it was in connection with an alleged extortion plot directed at the Balls.

Police Chief Frank Wallar said Ball shot Straka with a small-bore rifle from an upstairs window of the Ball home at nearby Oakwood. Straka's gun discharged as he fell, but the shot went wild.

Richard told Wallar that the two men accosted him and forced him to accompany them to Defiance. There Straka's accomplice left them and Richard and Straka drove back to Paulding, arriving at the same time as Richard's parents.

Richard called a warning to his parents, who fled into the home. The elder Ball rushed to an upstairs window and fired, Wallar said, just as Straka pointed his gun at Richard.

Hold Woman At Ottawa Jail On Kidnap Charge

OTTAWA, O.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Helen Austin, 28, was held in the Ottawa jail today on a kidnaping charge filed by Walter Gould, father of 12-year-old Lois Gould, who was missing from her home two days.

Mrs. Austin and the child were found yesterday at the home of Mrs. Austin's parents in Haskins, O., by a Wood county deputy sheriff.

Sheriff Arnold Potts of Putnam county returned them to Ottawa. Mrs. Austin told him that she had intended to "bring Lois back today."

Lois is one of five motherless children left in care of Mrs. Austin who was Gould's housekeeper while he was in Chicago over the week-end visiting another of his children.

Lois was suffering from a bad cold.

The other Gould children are Phillis, 13, Marlene, 9, Robert, 6, Marie, 5, and Verda, 11, who is in Chicago.

MAIN BREAKS SECOND TIME

Water Line on North Adams Street Cracks Twice in Three Days.

The city water department today continued its battle against the weather which has taken heavy toll of water lines over the city.

Yesterday afternoon the line on North Adams street, which had kept water department repairmen on the job over the week-end, broke in a new place, about 100 feet from the repaired proportion, and workmen were still on the job today. James E. Warrack, superintendent of the department said. The break occurred between Third and Fourth streets. The water was not turned off during repairs.

Not so fortunate, however, were residents on Orange street between Wayne and First avenue. The water in this area had to be shut off while the line leading to a city fire hydrant had to be repaired. The line broke when the frozen ground hooved up and lifted the hydrant with it.

Fire Chief Charles Seeburger said today that he had made an investigation of the districts in which three fire hydrants froze up because they had been used by unauthorized persons and had not been properly shut off. He said that in each case he failed to find anyone who had seen, or who could identify persons they had seen using the hydrants.

Last week Seeburger charged that WPA workmen and private contractors used the hydrants without permission and failed to shut them off properly so that they froze. There were no WPA projects in the vicinity of any of the frozen hydrants over the week-end, he said today.

ROUT INTRUDER AT THREE HOMES

Residents Report Attempts to Enter Bedroom Windows.

Three residents in the northeast section of the city reported to police yesterday that attempts had been made to enter their homes through bedroom windows during the night.

Mrs. Tressia Doklovic, 91 Grace street, said the man had raised the window shortly after 2 a. m. and that he ran when she called for help. Mrs. Alex Demyan, 89 Grace street, told police of the same experience.

Mrs. Steve Beal, 78 Grace street, reported that someone had tried to open the window of her home early in the morning but had been frightened away. A wooden box was found under the window as well as foot prints.

TIFFIN—(AP)—A water shortage gave eastern Seneca county farmers another chore today — hauling water from quarries, streams and Sandusky bay to provide for livestock and household needs. Wells have dropped to low stages as a result of little rainfall since last spring, M. L. Howell, county farm agent, reported.

BRICKER HITS 'POLITICS' IN PENSION DUEL

Concludes Visit to Washington Wishing President Happy Birthday.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Ohio's governor, John W. Bricker, a possible GOP "dark horse" presidential nominee, completed a whirlwind visit to the capital today after severely criticizing President Roosevelt but wishing him "a happy birthday—and many of them."

Bricker accused the president of "playing politics" with old age pension money. He said American institutions were threatened when an "arrogant bureaucrat will use his temporary control over other peoples' money to satisfy a personal whim or serve a narrow partisan political purpose." He said Ohio would "go to court" to seek the social security funds withheld from it by the federal government.

Bricker made his charges before the Ohio Society of Washington's annual dinner. Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, an avowed GOP presidential candidate, introduced him. During the day he was entertained at a reception in the Taft home, conferred with a number of Ohio members of congress and held a press conference.

The evident friendship between Bricker and Taft during the visit gave renewed strength to reports that they have an understanding to the effect that if Taft is unsuccessful in securing the Republican presidential nomination, he will throw his strength to Bricker. The governor said he would vote for Taft at the national convention.

Bricker told the Ohio society that every member of congress who voted to sustain the president's veto of a bill authorizing payment of the social security funds withheld by the government, "would live to regret it." He told them the social security board refuse "in a most arbitrary and insolent manner" to hand over to Ohio its "just" social security funds.

TALKS TO 100

I. O. O. F. Director Tells of Youth Program of Lodge.

George I. Breiel, director of development and extension for the grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, addressed an audience of more than 100 last night at the I. O. O. F. temple in which he outlined a youth program being launched by that lodge.

The talk was one in a series to be given by Breiel on a tour of the central states.

"The I. O. O. F. is having presented to every state legislative body in the United States and Canada a bill which provides that children attending public school, may be permitted for one hour a week to attend their respective places of worship, there to receive moral instruction," Breiel said.

"We are promoting the spirit of patriotism and condemning all subversive movements that have a tendency to undermine and destroy our democracy. We are likewise condemning the publication and distribution of all sex suggestive magazines, likewise every type of gangster, racketeer and crime motion picture," he added.

Clyde Plotts was in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

FINNS WAIT NEW RUSSIAN ATTACK

Loud Speaker Trick Gets Red Troops to Surrender on Promise of Food.

line the Finns took up the "loud speaker" technique which the Soviets introduced into this war and which has been used by the French and Germans along the western front.

The Finns used their loud speakers to exhort the Russian soldiers to "come over and surrender and get food in plenty."

Russian officers ordered their men into dugouts, which were tightly shut, the moment the Finnish verbal barrage began.

But they were unable to prevent a number of Russians from taking the Finns at their word, crossing the no man's land and surrendering.

As they entered the Finnish lines, the Russian soldiers looked about them hungrily and muttered:

"And now, food!"

Finn Cities Dig Out of Air Raid Wreckage.

HELSINKI—(AP)—Mass air attacks deep within Finland were viewed by Finns today as Soviet Russian strategy to offset reverses on the land fronts.

A half dozen cities dug out from the wreckage of the war's heaviest aerial assault in which more than 1,000 bombs were dropped yesterday on southern areas.

At least 53 persons were known to be dead and casualties were expected to go higher. Thirty persons died at Turku, target of a three-hour bombing.

A field hospital behind the Finnish lines at the Karelian isthmus front was wrecked by a bomb and four women and 19 wounded soldiers and hospital attendants killed.

(Reuters (British) news agency said 50 persons were killed and 200 injured in a raid on the Finnish naval base of Hanko. The report was not confirmed by Finnish sources.)

Fires flared in a half dozen cities, including Hanko. Casualties were reported in raids on Tampere, industrial center north of the capital, Porvookarja, and other centers.

The Finns reported five of 50 planes were brought down over Turku, and one at Helsinki, where raiders were beaten off four times by pursuit ships and anti-aircraft fire during the day.

The known dead of yesterday already exceeded the total reported by the Finnish high command killed in enemy raids last week. In a review of last week's air raids, the Finns said 24 persons were killed and 56 wounded. The review charged that eight hospitals "clearly marked with the international emblem" (red cross) were attacked with bombs and machine-guns.

(The Russian high command in a report of yesterday's activities said "seven enemy planes were brought down in various districts" and that "Soviet aviation made reconnoitering and bombing flights.")

Reporting new successes on the Lake Ladoga front, the Finnish high command yesterday said 1,250 Russian soldiers had been left dead on the battlefields.

TWO OFFICIALS FOUND GUILTY IN LIBEL CASE

Ashland Judge Orders Medina Constable and J. P. Jailed Till They Pay $100 Fine.

ASHLAND — The three-month-old case of the state vs. two Medina county officials ended today when Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson found both guilty of criminal libel and fined them $100 and costs each. He ordered them committed to county jail until the fine is paid.

Walter L. Petchler, constable of the village of Brunswick, and Mark M. Lutz, justice of the peace, appeared before Judge Culbertson this morning and changed their former pleas of not guilty to nolo contendre, which the court explained meant they were not willing to contend the issue. Tthe men asked for leniency through their counsel.

Petchler's trial had been set for this morning after a jury had been selected yesterday afternoon. Prosecuting Attorney A. Ross Siberling accepted the changed pleas.

Hits False Affidavits.

In passing sentence, the court said Ashland county was not concerned with the speed trap which the village of Brunswick is said to have been operating and which was indirectly the cause of the charge being filed against the two men, nor with any of their actions in Medina county, but solely with the offense they were accused of in Ashland county, which involved the filing of false affidavits against Robert M. Greenlun, ousted state highway employe.

The case started last October when Judge Culbertson asked for a grand jury investigation of a "widespread wave of perjury over the county, especially among notary publics."

The jury indicted Petchler and Lutz on criminal libel charge as the result of their having filed affidavits against Greenlun, with the state highway department, charging him with soliciting political funds and operating state trucks while intoxicated.

The affidavits were said to have been filed by the Brunswick men after Greenlun had broken up an alleged speed trap at Brunswick. Greenlun was suspended from his job as superintendent of highway markings and later was permanently relieved of his job. A civil service appeal by Greenlun was rejected this past week.

DEATH DENIED BORAH CHANCE TO SEE HITLER

Senator Hoped Conference With Fuehrer Might Lead to World Peace Plan.

Jewish organization asked me to intervene with Borah to get him to make a personal appeal to Hitler to cease attacks on Jews. He insisted Borah would have more influence on Hitler than any other man in the world. This request stirred Borah deeply and we talked at length about an effective method of appealing to Hitler.

"I am willing to do anything that will be effective, but it must be effective," he told me, "otherwise it may bring only greater unhappiness down on the heads of those poor people."

Borah finally decided that if the leader of a responsible Jewish organization wrote him a letter about the condition of Jews abroad, he would reply with a letter that in itself would constitute a personal appeal to Hitler to relax anti-Jewish decrees. He insisted, however, he would not attack the German chancellor. I reported this to the Jewish representative.

There followed a curious delay, but on March 24, the reason for the delay appeared. The state department sent an appeal to all major powers to co-operate in financing the emigration of political refugees from Austria and Germany. The Jews apparently preferred this note to a Borah appeal.

Borah frequently discussed the Jewish problem with me in the following summer of 1938. On Oct. 1, German got part of Czechoslovakia in the "Munich accord." Anti-Jewish decrees were issued immediately in the new German territory.

On Nov. 7, a Jew shot Ernst von Rath, third secretary of the German embassy in Paris. On Nov. 12, the reich fined the Jews of Greater Germany one billion marks and began imposing stiffer restrictions. On Nov. 15, President Roosevelt spoke of the "deeply shocked public opinion in the United States" and recalled the American ambassador from Berlin.

Almost daily Borah talked to me of the plight of Jews in Germany. On Wednesday, Nov. 23, he remarked casually to me:

"I would like to visit Germany if I only could be certain of having an interview with Hitler. There are so many great sides to him, I believe I might accomplish something in behalf of the Jews if I only could talk to him face to face. There's always the possibility I might get Hitler to relax a bit. I just can't get that thought out of my mind."

After I left Borah, I visited Kurt Sell, Washington correspondent of the German news agency. I told Sell that Borah had expressed a desire to visit Germany if he were certain of an interview with the German chancellor.

Sell was by no means enthusiastic about the idea of interceding. He pointed out Borah had frequently condemned Hitler in public speeches and touched upon the possibility that Hitler might not overlook those attacks.

I urged Sell to "make a try." At last he agreed.

We also made one other agreement—to get the story exclusively for our own news agencies.

Five days later, on Monday Nov. 28, I told Borah that steps were being taken to get him a personal interview with the German chancelor in Germany.

Late that afternoon, Sell telephoned me:

"The Germany embassy has received a message from the German foreign office inviting Senator Borah to visit Germany as the guest of the third reich, with consultations with Chancellor Hitler and Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

"The embassy asks that Senator Borah shall say when he wishes to sail and transportation will be provided him. The embassy further says that Senator Borah will be the guest of the German government while on German soil.

"The charge d'affaires is ready to transmit the invitation officially in any manner desired by Senator Borah."

I thereupon telephoned the senator:

"You have been invited to visit Germany as the guest of the German government. Both Hitler and Von Ribbentrop will see you. What do you say? When will you go?"

There was a moment of stunned silence from the other end of the wire. Then, speaking as though he could not catch his breath, Borah replied:

"Wait until tomororw."

(Tomorrow—Borah replies to Hitler.)

two messages during the day—one to congress suggesting a $10,000,000 program for construction of small hospitals, and another to the hundreds of presidential birthday balls that are being held to raise funds for the anti-infantile paralysis campaign.

The president will deliver a nationwide broadcast address to the various dancing parties at 11:30 p. m. (EST), today.

A large group of motion picture celebrities who are appearing at birthday balls at the various capital hotels, were invited for a White House luncheon by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Among the film celebrities on the guest list were Dorothy Lamour, Mickey Rooney, Tyrone Power, James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Ona Munsen, Edward G. Robinson, Gene Autry, Elsa Lanchester, William Boyd, Olivia De Haviland, Red Skelton, Kay Kyser, Edward Everett Horton, Brenda Joyce and Gloria Jean.

For dinner, Mrs. Roosevelt invited the so-called "cuff-links club," the group of intimate friends who have been associated with the president for more than a quarter century.

There will be a cake, but in line with long-standing family tradition, only 21 candles will adorn it.

The charges were filed by Adam Horvath of Detroit, who told police that he sustained a fractured jaw when Black struck him during an altercation on North Main street Saturday night.

HITLER SCORNS BRITISH AIMS

Promise of United Europe and Disarmament Old Story, He Says on 7th Anniversary.

rope simply went from bad to worse.

"The treaty of Versailles was to have brought about all the improvements that England promised . . . but nothing was accomplished . . . and when all Germany's treaties had proved to be in vain, national socialism was born."

Controlled economies, internationalism and socialism all attempted to heal the wounds of Versailles, Hitler declared, but none proved helpful.

"National socialism," he said, "appealed to common sense and to all human feelings.

"But our pleas and our entreaties to our former enemies were all in vain. For that reason our regime was compelled to rely entirely upon itself."

Hitler then traced the various steps by which his government had rebuilt Germany. All problems could have been solved in a peaceful manner, he declared, "if other countries had been willing to play fair."

As soon as England had realized the full extent of Germany's rejuvenation, the fuehrer declared, its government decided to wage war.

"England, particularly Mr. Chamberlain, waged a war of words against us," he said, "we can only answer by saying that England is now being repaid in terms of its own past history.

"Of course, England never had any intention of carrying the weight of this war upon its own shoulders. It therefore persuaded others to join in for England's own salvation."

Hitler told his enthusiastically cheering hearers that England had always dedicated itself to material gains "from the diamond mines in Africa to all her other exploitations."

"Chamberlain now prattles of idealistic aims," he said, "but no one pays any attention to him."

* * *

The prevalence of the sober gray green army uniform, the rigorous rationing of food and a grim attention to business marked the anniversary of the triumph of Hitler's national socialist party.

A year ago today brass bands blared martial airs in the streets. Buildings and houses flew the Nazi swastika. Hitler, in a speech before a celebratory gathering of his Reichstag expressed his faith in a long peace, emphasized the value of the German-Polish non-aggression treaty, spoke in friendly terms of Great Britain and France, and said that Germany aided the Spanish nationalists to prevent the Bolshevist "lust of blood" from spreading.

Today 4,000,000 German men are under arms. Poland and Czechoslovakia, like Austria, are no more. Germany is a friend of Russia.

It is estimated by some that 12,000 war planes stock the hangars of the German air force and there is an increasing belief that many of them will see service this spring. Up to 75 submarines, also according to estimates, are ready to prey upon commerce. The Nazi party, as it was a year ago, is the unchallenged authority.

There was no reichstag meeting today by official order, celebratory flags were not flown, and Germans used ration cards to get food.

Day's Developments.

Some developments of the last 24 hours, as contrasted with the situation a year ago, were:

An official announcement that precious or semi-precious stones must not be disposed of without official permission, and that their possession must be reported to a "reich office for miscellaneous objects."

After Stars Were Robbed

Constance Bennett (left) and Anita Louise, motion picture stars, are pictured in a Chicago police station with George Bayne (left), Miss Bennett's chauffeur, and Richard Ainley, her leading man, after the women were robbed of $31,595 in jewelry. The four were returning from a charity ball when their car was forced to the curb by five masked bandits, who snatched the gems and fled. This is a phonephoto.

FARMERS WEEK

County Delegation at Annual Program at Ohio State.

Headed by County Agent George B. Ganyard, a number of Richland county rural residents were in Columbus today to attend the annual Farmers' Week program at Ohio State university.

Ganyard estimated that nearly 100 Richland countians will be at the sessions during the week. He will return to Mansfield Thursday. Total attendance at the annual meeting is expected to be from 12,000 to 15,000.

Four new master farmers were to be honored today with Edmund Secrest, director of the state experiment station at Wooster, as principal speaker. Gov. John W. Bricker will speak Wednesday and Louis J. Taber, master of the National grange, will be on Thursday's program.

Lectures on a variety of topics will be given during the week by farm authorities. Among the speakers will be A. L. Lockhart of Lexington and Claude Shelton of Iberia, potato growers, and J. W. Fluke, Ashland livestock breeder.

WARNS VENDORS ON TAX RETURNS

Sales Tax Chief Points to Deadline for Filing 1939 Reports.

R. P. Barthalow, chief of the state sales tax division, today warned vendors that they must file their sales tax returns for the last half of 1939 by Wednesday night to escape a penalty of $1 a day.

He said there will be no "general extension of time" granted, although several thousand vendors in Ohio have not yet submitted returns.

State tax inspectors have been assisting Richland county vendors in making out their returns during the past month, visiting cities and villages in the county on a schedule.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1940.

Few things are easier than to be "mentioned" for president or congressman.

Leap year is reviving the old question—at what age does a bachelor become "confirmed"?

Nor is it to be overlooked—this is the first time for 28 years that there have been five Thursday pay-days in February.

Another Institute Series

THE THIRD ANNUAL presentation of the Institute of International Understanding, scheduled for the four Monday evenings in February, will be welcomed by many residents of Mansfield and neighboring towns and cities who were in attendance at previous sessions.

As heretofore, the institute is being sponsored by the University and Rotary clubs of Mansfield, and there is to be no admission charge.

These institute sessions are being conducted in about three hundred communities in the United States, and are made possible through the co-operation of Rotary International, as a part of its program for advancing better understanding among people of different countries.

During the series which starts Monday evening, February 5, at Senior high school auditorium, four prominent speakers will discuss problems in the field of international relations in a factual and informative way, free from propaganda and with a view to furnishing background material on the basis of which thoughtful listeners can form their own opinions. These speakers present no plans for peace, nor do they advocate any crusade to change world situations.

The attitude of those sponsoring these institutes, as well as those who address them, is that of developing international understanding and is epitomized in the slogan, "The struggle to understand the other fellow will disarm us of pettiness and prejudice."

A feature of these institute sessions which has proved specially interesting is the question period which follows each address, during which the speaker answers questions bearing on the subject matter of the lecture. An invitation has been extended to other club groups in Mansfield and vicinity and it is also emphasized that everyone interested is invited to attend.

Changing Governments

CANADA, politically upset over war policy, is going to hold a national election to see whether the people agree with the way Mackenzie King has been running things. They might pick a new premier for the war. The British "parliamentary system," which permits an election at any time when parliament votes a lack of confidence in the government, makes such decisions simpler and easier than in the United States.

Americans, naturally concerned with the attitude of a country so close, will be much interested in seeing how that election goes. So will the British Empire and continental Europe. It will be an important revelation of what our northern neighbors really think about the war and how they want it run. Canadians, in their general attitude toward world affairs, seem to stand about half way between the United States and Great Britain.

Football's Place In Education

THERE can be no successful college football without subsidy, says President Hutchins of the University of Chicago, and such subsidy he considers illegitimate and unwise. So he is determined to operate his university without football teams.

There is no reason why football shouldn't be played at Chicago by class teams, or by volunteers from any part of the university, just for the fun of it. Baseball, tennis and many other games are played so in nearly all the colleges. And that is the best kind of athletics for educational institutions. But it's hard for students nowadays to reconcile themselves to such a lapse into normal athletic sport.

Many parents, however, agree with the daring Dr. Hutchins, that football has been "a major handicap to education" in this country, and that it's a good thing to have an important university set such a sane example.

America's Cluttered Air

IF IT IS GRANTED that radio is, or should be, a public utility used for public benefit and progress, there are many things that might be said about it by way of legitimate criticism. The most effective comment observed lately comes from Ted Robinson, newspaper columnist.

"It is all very well to point out that there are excellent programs," he says "and that I can shut off the bad ones. What I kick about is that there are so many times when I have to turn them all off, and that these times too frequently coincide with the leisure I have for listening. Nine out of ten times when I turn the dials to find something I can listen to without pain or disgust I can find no such programs being broadcast from any station.

"I want music, and I get my choice among a female mooing an ugly ditty set to the same tune that is used for all female mooing, a grotesque orchestra making the sort of insane racket which I believe is called 'jive', a hill-billy or cowboy guitar-and-mouth-organ combination, a throaty baritone garbling the same song all the throaty baritones are using this month, a high school band. And through it all the interruptions of the advertising orator.

"I know I can hear symphony orchestra music. I know I can hear Metropolitan Grand Opera on Saturday afternoons. I know there is good stuff to be had. But I cannot always be at leisure for these programs. I protest that people ought to be able to find something that is not beneath contempt somewhere at any time of the day. And until the average intelligence is to be gauged to the intelligence and taste of illiterates and abnormal children, ordinary citizens have a right to kick."

This protest, which might represent the attitude of at least several million people, seems to call for a serious answer.

Flowered Roadsides

A PLEASANT form of rivalry is given fresh impetus by announcement from Brownsville, Texas, that the lower Rio Grande Valley hopes soon to have "the longest flower trail in the country." Millions of bougainvilleas are being planted along the highways from Edinburg to Brownsville and Port Isabel and along other routes in that section.

The bougainvillea is a shrub which blooms there most of the year and is handsome and showy. Proud local residents believe their trail will compare well with the famous Azalea Trail of Mobile and the Oleander Trail of Galveston.

Highway planting is a fairly recent development. For a while the main idea was to get good roads built. Efficiency was the aim, not beauty. Now citizens know they can have both.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It happens every night at precisely the same time and in the same way. It happens at nine o'clock, and it is always accompanied by a rush for a taxicab. It is simply that at this moment a group of young men rush out of the Roosevelt hotel, pile into a cab (last one in pays the fare), and hurry away to one of the city's numerous ice rinks.

They skate for thirty minutes then shake off their skates, pile into another cab, and hurry back to the hotel. A few minutes later they are in their positions and promptly on the stroke of ten one of them lifts a baton, and the dance is on.

These are the Lombardo boys—Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians. They have a hockey team and play matches with semi-pro and amateur outfits. Being Canadians, they are sure-footed as cats on the ice. Carmen Lombaro even has a rink in his yard, and all last week his daylight hours were spent in teaching the Filipino cook next door how to skate. He falls down so often the Lombardos call him the little man who wasn't there.

There wasn't much skating for Guy during the recent motorboat show. He spent most of his time walking around the show rooms and climbing into and out of the newer models. The new one he ordered will make 87 miles an hour, which means he hasn't any further use for that big 57-footer he owns now. . . . Hence that "for sale" sign in the ads. He also has a 35-footer that goes about 65 miles an hour, and he had another—a 38-footer, but that burned last summer.

FERD BROWNING, sports writer, reports finding evidence of some last minute instructions to a visiting friend in one of the elevated stations. This is the El that runs through Queens, and as Ferd analyzes it, somebody on 40th street had given the wrong address to an expected visitor and was trying desperately to correct the error. Apparently telephoning had failed, so the fellow raced down to the Lowery street station and in foot high letters chalked this note on the side of the wall:

"George, the address is 4787 40th street, and NOT 7487 as I told you."

Whether George ever got there could not be ascertained.

* * *

AND now there is just time for that admirably original bum who was hauled into 47th street police station on a charge of picking pockets. They caught him with his hand in a man's overcoat pocket, and with much presence of mind the intended victim seized the offender and clamored for the police.

"Guilty or not guilty," boomed the judge.

"Your Honor," came the astonishing reply, "my hand was in this gentleman's pocket, but I wasn't really stealing. I'm on a Scavenger hunt and I was looking for a Canadian penny."

There is, of all things, a cameraman in the village whose name is—Camera. His first name is Cesar and his address is No. 10 Sheridan Square.

'No War Boom', Spending Plea

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Advocates of continued government spending to take care of the unemployment situation and in the hope of "pump priming"—while temporarily being ignored by the administration—are absolutely confident that the government will have to swing back to their theory.

For one thing they insist that the war situation is not going to solve our domestic problems. War orders, they insist, are being grossly exaggerated. More important, they are mostly for airplanes and munitions, on the theory that Britain and France are buying all the food and other nonmilitary items they can elsewhere. The reason for this is chiefly the Johnson act, which prevents further credits to governments which have defaulted on previous loans.

It so happens that most of the Dominions still owe money to Great Britain, thus being in the same financial relationship that the United States was in 1914. That alone makes it easier to buy from them, aside from the natural tendency of Great Britain to "Buy British," and thus cement the ties of empire. But even more important is the fact that Britain can obtain necessary goods on credit in nearly every other producing country in the world, or else can create the exchange needed to buy the supplies by her own exports.

* * *

FOR example, take the Argentine republic. Britain is eager to buy her grain and her beef. The United States is not willing to buy either, this being the primary reason why the recently attempted negotiations for a reciprocal trade treaty with the Argentine broke down. So it is a comparatively easy matter for Britain to sell her manufactured goods in Argentina, competing directly with the products of the United States, and thus pay for needed foodstuffs which could be obtained, by a much shorter ship haul from the United States.

As a matter of fact this was true before the war. Certain British subjects, particularly in the sheep-raising sections of Scotland, have long criticized the policy of the British government in encouraging beef imports from the Argentine instead of favoring home-grown meat.

Sir Charles Ross, for example, one of the big landowners in the Scotch highlands, claims that the British farmer has been exploited by the British government in this respect in order that British manufacturers could sell their products to South America. This, he maintains, is apt to cause the government grief if mines and submarines continue to play havoc with shipping.

* * *

SO ON the whole the spending crowd in Washington does not think much of the war boom prosperity idea, either for war exports proper or for the United States supplanting the belligerents in the neutral markets. They admit that Germany is out for the duration of the war as a competitor, but insist that Britain is apt to take over the lion's share of the trade that was Germany's.

Neither do they admit that national defense spending will be enough. In the first place, they contend, sperding for warships and munitions is not as valuable in getting money in circulation as the same amount paid in pensions, farm relief or for WPA. This is entirely aside from the fact that money spent for war supplies serves no economic need, being merely insurance against danger.

They argue that money spent for a battleship, for insurance, yields considerable profit to the ship builder—if it is built in a private yard—and to the armor manufacturers and steel makers. These profits might merely become bank deposits, or be added to funds for investment, whereas every dollar of pensions, farm relief payments or WPA would be spent immediately.

Health and Diet

Scientific Tactics In Battling Moth.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE of my readers has referred a question about the clothes moth to me. I do not see that this is properly a health question except inasmuch as it causes worry, hypochondriasis and hysteria, but since I happen to have some information, I will be glad to pass it on.

Here are some little known facts about the clothes moth:

When the housewife suddenly jumps to her feet and makes a frantic dash after a moth that is flying in the air she is obeying an ancient instinct but is not at her scientific best. The only damage that is done by the clothes moth is from the larvae, fresh hatched from eggs. The flying moth is always male so cannot lay any eggs.

The female has extremely small wings and practically always uses her feet as a mode of locomotion. She is also heavily weighted with eggs, which prevents her aviation impulses from being carried out. It may be said that killing the flying moth is a method of moth birth control, but it is said to relate that the female is not monogamous and can find a husband nearly any place. Males are in excess in the moth population, being 65 per cent.

Its Life Cycle.

The life cycle of the moth is like all insects, first the egg, then the larva or maggot, then the pupa, and finally the mature adult. The female, as soon as she reaches maturity, lays eggs for from two to 24 days. She prefers to lay them in strands of wool or hair. A virile female lays between 40 and 70 eggs (this estimate from Major E. E. Austen and A. W. McKenny Hughes, British Museum of Natural History). The eggs hatch in from eight to ten days.

The larva begins to feed as soon as it is hatched. Its skin is translucent, so it takes on the color of whatever it feeds on. It does not show white against black. It spins a fine veil over itself, however, and it is this veil which the housewife sees when she opens a trunk or closet.

Contrary to a popular belief, the larva will eat wool or fur and not necessarily food remnants on clothes.

Since the larvae can survive for a year or more in a state of hibernation without food, it is not possible to starve them out as we can other varmints. There are, however, many ways of combatting this pest. The best is temperature. They cannot endure low temperatures and, therefore, the best way to protect fur is to put them in cold storage. Even better than cold temperatures, are sudden changes of temperature.

A chemical for destroying the moth is flaked naphthalene. It kills by means of its fumes so that naphthalene scattered on the floor and shelves of a closet will do damage so long as it is understood that a closet is closed up.

A more expensive but efficient moth killer is paradichlorbenzene. Like naphthalene, it is harmless to human beings, is a crystallized substance and is used the same as naphthalene.

For Happiness

Vast sums of money have little to do with happiness in this world. Many people with millions are not only unhappy, but actively miserable because of their wealth and the complications it brings into their lives. On the contrary, some of the people who have very little of this world's goods have a happiness that the wealthiest man would trade his gold for.

Geography does not make happiness. We feel that if we could move to this, that or the other place, we would be perfectly happy. When chance gives us the opportunity, we find that climate and location have little to do with happiness.

Happiness always has and always must come through human relationships. It is the people around us, our pleasant associations with them, the smiles our friends have for us, which make our happiness.

Thus, the main object of every man in his pursuit of happiness should be the cultivation of friends. The lack of friends makes life lonely and miserable; the presence of friends makes every day a holiday.—Kiwanis Magazine.

Daily Bible Thought

He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth.—Psalm 57 3.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It has already been published that AFL President Bill Green called upon Roosevelt last week to present a giant birthday cake (which had been crushed en route), plus infantile paralysis checks from AFL members.

What was not generally known was the fact that while Green and Roosevelt were talking, the president picked up two teletype reports which Steve Early had just placed upon his desk. They reported John L. Lewis's hot blast accusing Roosevelt of "not keeping faith" with labor.

"Bill," said Roosevelt, after glancing at the teletype sheets, "it's wonderful to be remembered this way by you and the A. F. of L. I'll be honored to accept the cake and the money the Federation is donating to my little crippled friends."

And then he added: "You don't know how much this means to me, coming at this partcular time."

Mrs. Roosevelt.

IT WAS a cold wintry day in Washington. There was a nine-inch snow on the ground and the streets were icy. A car stood waiting at the front entrance of the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt emerged from the front door, dressed in a blue woolen suit, with a brown fur about her neck. She glanced at the car, took a deep breath of the wintry air, waved the car away, and set out on foot.

She walked out of the White House grounds, waited for the lights to change, crossed Pennsylvania avenue and proceeded alone along the slippery pavements to make a call, six blocks away.

The guards started after her. "You never can tell about her," said one to the other.

Insurance Explosion.

A SPECTACULAR explosion is brewing under the surface between the monopoly committee and moguls of the big insurance companies.

Infuriated by numerous embarrassing disclosures about their business practices already made by the committee, and others known to be in the works, the insurance tycoons have launched a hot undercover counter-attack. One company, the giant Metropolitan Life, even has gone to the extent of refusing to furnish the committee with information.

This defiance, which included disregard for a personal letter written by Senator O'Mahoney, soon will come to a showdown inside the committee. Unless the company yields, it will be suppoenaed; and the next step after that will be the courts.

Chief target of the insurance attack is an unpublished committee report, presenting a detailed and graphic series of comparisons of the rates, costs, profits and investment returns of all the important companies in the country. Any layman can turn to this report and in a few minutes get a clear picture of the financial standing and operations of the company in which he has a policy.

Some of the comparisons are devastating. One shows that a certain insurance company, with many millions of dollars on deposit in a bank, did not get a cent of interest on this huge sum. Officers of this company were also directors of the bank. Other comparisons reveal astounding variations in rates charged for the same kind of policy.

The committee sent copies of the report to the companies "for correction of any errors." That was weeks ago. Meanwhile they have sent back no corrections but have exerted tremendous undercover pressure to have the report suppressed.

In addition, they have launched a double-barreled attack on the committee. One assault is being directed by James Madden, former U. S. Chamber of Commerce official, and is financed by some of the largest national companies. The other attack, managed by C. B. Robbins, is backed by the American Life Convention, an organization of 140 smaller companies.

Both have large staffs and both are sending out floods of material and complaints to members of congress, insurance agents, policy holders and others. One staff occupies half a floor of a leading New York hotel, and among its high-priced experts is a prominent Washington publicity agent and lobbyist.

Brazilian Ants.

CHARMING Mrs. Arthur Krock, wife of the New York Times correspondent and herself a writer under the name "Martha Blair," has been having trouble with Brazilian ants.

Despite every conceivable effort to get rid of them, the ants have continued to infest her house. Finally, Mrs. Krock discovered that they came from a nearby bakery, and she asked the baker to close his shop long enough to fumigate.

The baker, however, demurred that his customers depended upon his daily output of bread, and if he closed down for two or three days, he would lose business.

So Mrs. Krock discussed her entomological predicament with her friend Evie Robert, wife of the secretary of the Democratic national committee, who in turn called upon her friend, George Allen, commissioner of the District of Columbia.

"George," said Evie, "can't you get the health authorities to fumigate the bakery? Martha just has to get rid of those Brazilian ants. They're driving her out of house and home."

"Brazilian ants?" replied Commissioner Allen. "Well, ordinarily, we'd be glad to drive out Martha's Brazilian ants. But these days we have to be awfully careful about the Good Neighbor policy."

John L. Lewis Tactics.

JOHN L. LEWIS' abandonment of his secret plan to have the United Mine Workers endorse Senator Burt Wheeler for president was not voluntary.

Strong dissent developed from two quarters. A number of mine leaders objected strenuously, and some of the biggest guns in the CIO served notice that they intended to stick by Roosevelt regardless of anything Lewis did.

Faced with the prospect of a serious split, Lewis dropped his scheme. But in doing so he took a parting shot at Roosevelt backers with his surprise no-third-term bombshell.

Lewis apparently didn't read the miners' report to the convention before it was published, because in one paragraph it scathingly denounced the "reactionary cabal" that defeated the New Deal spend-lend bill last summer. One of the leading opponents of this measure was none other than Burton K. Wheeler, who sponsored the amendment that deleted one of the principal provisions of the bill, $500,000,000 fund for the financing of new rail equipment.

Federal Reserve Head.

EARNEST little Marriner S. Eccles will continue as chairman of the Federal Reserve board when his term expires Feb. 1, but without a new appointment. This is at his own request.

Under the law, the chairman can continue in office until his successor is named. A new appointment would be for four years and Eccles could continue until 1944. But he is opposed to this, believing that every president should have the right to name his own Reserve board head, and a new president will be elected this year.

This was the intent of the law when the chairman's term was fixed at four years, but through a boner in congress the timing was not geared to Eccles' tenure of office.

A Gift of Trees

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"YOU'LL be interested to know," wrote a friend to me, "that old man L—— willed his oak grove to the town on condition that it never be cut, but be constantly reforested."

Old Man L—— was at one time a neighbor of mine. I left that part of the country many years ago. It was a beautiful land, with forested slopes of oak, sugar, pine and hemlock to delight the eyes of any lumberman. And lumbermen bought it. Forests were cut, without regard to the good of the land, or pity for the trees, or wisdom for the country as a whole.

What was too small for saw timber was hewn into railroad ties; and what was too small for that made great stacks of mine props that were dragged along the hilly roads; and what was left—oh so little—lay rotting on the ground. I was homesick when I left those forests and heartsick when I returned to find them gone. There I used to walk and meditate; there I used to leave my cares behind and come away comforted.

But sentiments are not all that have been hurt. For those trees kept the moisture upon the land and scattered it little by little. Now, where forests stood, dashing rains have gullied out the hills and floods have devastated all the country round. Then when the rain has been drained away by wild swollen streams, the land is left to the mercy of sun and wind. Springs and wells have failed because deeper waters have not been replenished. The world is not so good to live in without the trees.

I have seen neighbor L——, who loved the grove of oaks upon his farm, stroke the bark of his favorites and talk to them. His big old hands were gnarled and hardened by toil, his spoken words, always few, were quite absent in the presence of his trees. Yet, somehow, I knew there was an understanding there, a gracious conversation, silent, strong and good.

"Trees can be trusted," the old man might have said. "They never cheat; they always tell the truth; they never laugh at me behind my back; they never hear me down when I am weak, but always lift instead, upon the upsweep of their sturdy branches. Their roots go down into the depths of things and they understand, for they are old. The oldest living things on earth are trees."

So, in his will, the old man gave away his friends, to carry on their gift of lasting beauty and happiness. And I, for one though far away, was glad to hear it.

Pointed Paragraphs

Many a man pulls down his character in an effort to build up his reputation.

A shrewd man may be both wise and honest, but the odds are against his being either.

Neither adversity nor prosperity ever changed a man; each merely brings out what there is in him.

Mother, Mix Your Own Cough Remedy, It's Fine.

Quick, Comforting Relief. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

This well-known home-mixed medicine costs very little, but it gives delightful, swift-acting relief from coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid cough remedy and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time and children love its taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, you'll say it is truly wonderful. It has a remarkable action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Former Hayesville Man Awarded High Honor By Chinese

Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer of New York, and a native of Hayesville, was one of four Americans honored by the Chinese government at a dinner in New York city last week.

Honor was bestowed on Dr. Diffendorfer "for services to the cause of education in China." He is corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist church, and a former president of the Associated Boards for Christian Colleges in China.

The four men were presented the Order of the Jade, one of China's highest recognitions for humanitarian services, by Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese ambasador to the United States. The decorations were conferred by the Chinese government last October, the anniversary of the founding of the Republic of China. Those who received the honor have been active in the promotion of Christian education through the colleges of China.

A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university, Dr. Diffendorfer is president of the board of founders of Nankin Theological Seminary, and 25 years ago was secretary of the board of trustees of the University of Nanking.

Dr. Diffendorfer is the son of Mrs. Addie L. Difendorfer of Ashland, and brother of Frank Diffendorfer of Hayesville.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.
